GIs and Guerrillas Battle Near Saigon

By ALVIN B. WEBB Jr.
SAIGON (UPI) — American and guerrilla forces today battled near Saigon. In neighboring Laos and in Thailand Communist forces launched attacks against government forces.

In South Vietnam fighting centered in the Viet Cong infested area between Saigon and the Cambodian border to the northwest. Guerrillas hiding along river banks Friday ambushed six U.S. Navy gunboats blockading the Communist water routes to the capital, killing two sailors and wounding 14 more.

Ashore, guerrillas attacked a U.S. Army 25th Infantry Division post 25 miles northwest of Saigon Friday, killing six GIs and wounding another 14. The U.S. troops killed 22 of the attackers. The Communists shelled South Vietnamese outposts today.

In their heaviest raiding since Nov. 26, U.S. B52 bombers Friday night and today dropped almost 3 million pounds of explosives on the guerrilla positions northwest of the capital in an attempt to blunt what military spokesmen called a threat to the city. South Vietnamese sources said a Saigon military alert has been spread to the nearby Bien Hoa and Long Binh bases and the city of Vung Tau, 40 miles to the southeast.

Communist gunners shot down a U.S. OH6 observation helicopter 30 miles northwest of Saigon Friday, killing one American and wounding two more. It was the 956th U.S. chopper downed in South Vietnam. Military sources said the Communists are building up a vast anti-aircraft gun system along South Vietnam's borders with Laos and Cambodia, protecting their Ho Chi Minh supply trail.

In Vietnam, Laos, Army commander Gen. Ouane Rattikoun said some 1,600 North Vietnamese troops Friday captured the town of Thateng and laid siege to a nearby government fort. He reported heavy fighting underway with the Communists using Thateng civilians as hostages, blocking action by Laotian strafing planes.

He said another 1,600 North Vietnamese were moving to block reinforcements to the 550 Laotian soldiers battling near Thateng. The general called the fighting "very, very serious."

He said the North Vietnamese could seize control of the entire Bolovens Plateau—the southern end of Laos—if they succeed. In Vietnam, some diplomats said the North Vietnamese might have struck simply to steal the current rice harvest.

The general said the invaders were using residents of Thateng, 350 miles southeast of Vientiane and 60 miles west of South Vietnam's northern border, as hostages. Rattikoun said this prevented Laotian fighters from strafing the North Vietnamese.

The Laos battling plus the guerrilla buildup near Saigon ran counter to American hopes for a Communist scaling down of the war for the negotiations in Paris.

Six years ago, on the eve of the East-West conference settling the war then raging in Laos, the Communists launched a major offensive. Some observers said the current Red action in Laos and South Vietnam may be just that—a bid for more conference table bargaining power.

In Paris... Table Talk

By GEORGE SIBERA
PARIS (UPI) — U. S. negotiators at the stalled Vietnam War talks today returned to the drawing board to try to design a table that will seat four delegations while appearing to seat only two.

The shape of the conference table to be used at expanded negotiations on the Vietnam War remained the main point of conflict holding up the start of the talks.

U.S. diplomats met North Vietnamese negotiators for three hours Friday and presented three separate seating arrangements in hopes of settling the current impasse and getting the talks started.

The meeting failed to achieve agreement. But U.S. officials said the two sides would study one another's proposals and meet again at a later date.

Hours later however, a North Vietnamese statement rejected all three of the American proposals and accused the Americans of a "lack of seriousness." The North Vietnamese did not mention future meetings.

The conflict over the shape of a conference table reflected the dispute over whether the talks are to be a two-sided or four-sided.

The United States and Saigon see the expanded talks as a two-sided affair between the allies on one hand and the Communists on the other.

North Vietnam insists the negotiations, if they are to be held at all, are four-sided with the Viet Cong having an equal and independent role.

The three proposals offered by the United States Thursday included:

- Two separate half oval-shaped tables.
- Two separate horseshoe-shaped tables.
- Two horseshoe-shaped tables separated but pushed against, two rectangular working tables for translators and stenographers.

The U.S. diplomats had hoped the third suggestion might be an agreeable compromise to North Vietnam since it would have the appearance of one table but in reality be two.

North Vietnam countered with its own proposal for a solid circular table. It said the proposal showed Hanoi's "good will."

Scranton on Mideast:

Even-Handed Policy Paramount

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania says the United States must strengthen its friendship with the Arab nations.

Scranton, returning from a 10-day mission to the Mideast at the behest of President-elect Nixon, said Friday that while the nation must not neglect its ties with Israel, it is important to point out "that we are also interested in other countries in that area, and that we have friends among them."

He told reporters that he stood by his statement made previously in Israel that "America would do well to have a more even-handed policy in that area."

Some Israeli officials objected to the earlier statement, saying it might indicate a reduction of U.S. aid to Israel. Scranton said he spoke only for himself and not for Nixon, who made several pro-Israel statements during the presidential campaign.

The former governor went on to say that everyone he talked to in five Arab nations he visited felt "that the United States is interested only in one thing, which is the state of Israel and its security."

If the United States neglects the 100 million Arabs, he said, the Soviet penetration of the area will become the more effective.

Nixon met for luncheon Friday with Scranton; Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers; Henry A. Kissinger, who will be Nixon's special assistant for national security affairs, and columnist Walter Lippmann.

Nixon spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler announced shortly after Scranton talked to reporters that the President-elect will be receiving visitors from both sides of the Middle Eastern conflict: Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli defense minister, today and next Tuesday, the Amir of Kuwait, an Arab state.

Ziegler said Dayan, Israel's military hero of the six-day 1967 war, was paying a "courtesy call." He said the leader of Kuwait, Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah, was being received at the suggestion of President Johnson, who was his host at the White House earlier this week.

to the mattress, with smoke damage throughout the house.

Friday's fire was the sixth in the West Hurley area in recent weeks that is being investigated as "suspicious" in nature. All are thought to be the work of a "firebug" and seem to follow a pattern.

Other Fires
State Police have been called in to investigate the fires and fire officials are keeping in close contact with BCI Investigators.

Volunteers were also called out in Ellenville, Saugerties, Milton, Cottekill, and Malden, yesterday in what was an unusually high number of blazes, all apparently unrelated.

All Ellenville companies were called out at 9:15 p. m. to a hotel fire in Ulster Heights that leveled one main building of 25 to 30 rooms and partially destroyed another building some 125 yards away.

The buildings were on a lake-front hotel complex in the Ulster Heights hamlet and were vacant at the time.

Fire Chief George Garrison said the fire is under investigation.

Cause Unknown
The chief said the cause of the blaze was unknown, but noted that it was of a suspicious nature considering the distance between the two buildings involved. The completely gutted building was the center of a 10 to 15-acre complex that had flourished as a haven for summer vacationers.

He reported that one volunteer was injured by a hose and was treated by an Ellenville doctor but his condition was not known.

'Firebug' Again in West Hurley?

By SHANE CROSBY
WEST HURLEY — County firefighters were kept on the run Friday afternoon and night, responding to at least half a dozen fires that included a house fire in this community that is considered "suspicious" and may be connected to a rash of blazes believed to have been set by "firebugs."

Fish Event-- Net $10,000

By LYNN MULVANEY
A private and almost hush-hush fund-raising stag dinner Thursday night in Kingston, raised a reported $10,000 for Congressman-elect Hamilton Fish Jr., the Freeman learned yesterday.

Even the Ulster County Republican Committee reportedly was not in on the arrangements for the $100-a-plate event held at the Twaalfskill Country Club, West O'Reilly Street.

In order to keep the event one which would benefit Fish exclusively, 11th-hour invitations went out to GOP chairman John B. Sterley and some other elected Republican officials who might, under ordinary circumstances reap a share of the financial benefits to aid party coffers and help pay for recent campaign expenses.

The absence of Sen. Jay P. Rolison and Sterley from the dinner program was noted by many of the persons attending.

Thursday night's dinner was organized by a number of GOP party members including some Kingston lawyers and businessmen in the county community.

Companies from Ellenville Companies. The chief said units were assisted by Napanoch, Woodbourne and Wawarsing 12:30 a. m. today.

Cottekill fire fighters responded to a stove fire in their district about 6 p. m., Friday. Other minor fires were reported, in Milton where a power transformer blazed up; Malden where firemen fought a grass blaze and Glasco in the Town of Saugerties, where a small house fire was battled for about an hour last night. A minor fire was also halted in Centerville, apparently in collected brush and trash.

What in the World!

Flu Bug Hits N. Y. Schools

ALBANY (AP)—Flu bugs are disrupting academic life in New York State.

The first major outbreak was reported at the State University branch at Albany last weekend. Approximately 1,800 students there were hit by what was called a mysterious, flu-like ailment.

As health officials work to determine whether it was Hong Kong flu, students at other campuses around the state are being laid low.

Road Official Charged

CORTLAND, N. Y. (AP)—A Cortland County highway official has been arrested and charged with holding up a bank office in nearby McGraw.

Charles E. Brackett, 35, of Cortland, assistant superintendent of highways for the county, was arrested Friday and appeared before a justice of the peace on a charge of first-degree robbery. He was ordered held at the county jail, pending grand jury action.

Death Sentence: Father

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI)—"It's a death sentence," Leslie Lampi said after learning his twice-wounded son was headed back to the front lines in Vietnam despite a complaint his vision was impaired in a land mine explosion.

For two months, Lampi, 47, has been battling the Army to keep Spec. 4 William Lampi, 20, out of action. Friday he learned that doctors at Camp Zama Hospital in Japan had certified the boy for full duty.

Another DeGaulle Challenge

PARIS (UPI)—The Paris University students who began national collegiate strikes in May challenged President Charles de Gaulle's regime again today.

Students at the university's faculty of letters in suburban Nanterre stepped up their strike action and vowed they would keep the school closed throughout next week.

It was at the same faculty at the same university where student strikes in May spread to rioting, street-fighting and a nationwide general strike that nearly toppled de Gaulle's Fifth Republic.

Rich Cat Leaves $15,000

CHICAGO (AP)—A rich Chicago cat died Friday, leaving his owner about $15,000 richer, and much sadder.

It's the cat, Flat Nose, not the money, which dominates William J. Fields' thinking as he prepared a Monday funeral for his departed friend.

Flat Nose, who would have been 20 on Christmas, the equivalent of 140 human years, was one of five cats left to Fields in 1960 by their original owner, Mrs. Margaret Montgomery. She left $15,000 for their care which was to go to Fields when all were dead.

Bogus 10s and 20s Being Passed in Area

Counterfeit 10 and 20-dollar bills have been spotted in the area and both merchants and shoppers have been warned to be on the watch for them.

The public has been advised to carefully inspect each bill handled.

Francis H. Kolts, vice president of the State of New York National Bank, told The Freeman that both bills (10s and 20s) are of the 1963 A series. The 10-dollar bills have a 'B' in the seal on the left hand side and a series number ending in the letter 'A'.

The 20s have a 'D' in the seal and also end with the letter 'A' in the serial number.

Kolts offered the following advice on spotting the bogus bills:

- Look carefully at the portrait on the front, the phony bills have a solid background instead of a grid effect.
- Feel the bills, the phony bills have a fuzzy feeling, particularly on the back.
- Be careful of old, faded-looking money.

Kolts said Christmas is a favorite time for counterfeiters to ply their illegal wares. Most people are too busy at that time to take a good look at the money they give and receive.

So far, one counterfeit 20 and "three or four" counterfeit 10s have turned up.

AIR POLLUTION SURVEY—The County Health Department is conducting an air pollution survey in the Town of Saugerties for the State Health Department. The request was initiated by a petition listing 101 names of Saugerties residents filed with the Town Board at the June 11 meeting. The petition was forwarded to the State Health Department. Fred Wadnola, assistant public health engineer of the County Department, adjusts the high volume air sampler on the roof of Saugerties High School. The sampler draws air samples into a collection filter. The results of the test will be made known in about 30 days and this will determine if there is a violation under the current law. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

The 13th annual White Christmas program of the church school of The First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf Street and Tremper Avenue, takes place Sunday, 5 p. m. in the church sanctuary.

Featured with Christmas carols and music under the direction of Miss Edna Merrihew, organist and choir director, will be a play entitled The Christmas Trio, which was written and is directed by Elizabeth Askue, and in which all departments of the school, together with the junior and senior youth fellowships, take part. This year, the special offering and gifts for children will go to provide Christmas cheer for needy children of the community.

Immediately following the program, the children and their parents and friends will go to adjoining Ramsey Hall to herald the arrival of Santa Claus and witness his joyous distribution of gifts to the children.

'Creche of All Nations' Exhibit at Paltz Church

New Paltz United Methodist Church will present the "Creche of All Nations" at a special showing on Monday, Dec. 16 at 7:30 p. m. in the church sanctuary. This work of art is a 14-panel presentation of the Nativity scene carved in wood by Albert Fehrenbacher.

Called a "Volkerippe" or "Creche of All Nations," it was constructed with a painstaking eye to perfect detail by Fehrenbacher, a skilled German craftsman.

By depicting the Nativity in a symbolic way, as it relates to all lands, races, and cultures, Fehrenbacher seeks to show Christ as the One who can alone break down all barriers dividing men and so reconcile all men everywhere.

The setting of the Nativity scenes in the "Creche of All Nations" range from the Black Forest in central Europe to the Island of Oceania and the mountains of Peru.

For Nixon Administration

Nation's Cities—Imposing Troubles Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Imposing troubles await the Nixon administration in the nation's cities.

The new administration is pledged to reduce urban crime and federal spending but a complex tangle of social forces could keep it from both goals.

The population is booming. More than 115 million additional urban Americans are expected before the turn of the century. The numbers alone threaten a housing crisis and the acceleration of the unplanned sprawl jutting out from virtually every major city.

The nation's urban mayors say they need at least $26 billion more a year to help close the gap between necessary public services and the revenues available to pay for them.

Could Get Worse

What urbanist Wilbur Thompson of Wayne State University calls the "economics of the awful mess" could get even worse.

In the old inner cities, described in the 1968 Republican platform as "centers of despair," needs remain acute not only for housing but for a host of social services to upgrade education and health and reduce joblessness.

Population pressures keep building. One study showed that 500,000 nonwhites would have to move to the suburbs each year to keep the inner city population stable. The present nonwhite suburban migration rate is about 75,000 a year—a figure that could climb if economic gains allow Negroes to take advantage of the federal open housing law that takes effect Jan. 1.

Needs are growing for regional cooperation to ease the king-sized traffic problems afflicting cities from Boston to Seattle. The menace of smog and air pollution is growing darker.

Billion dollar price tags are everywhere—$29 billion for water pollution control, $9 billion for municipal sewage treatment plants, the mayors say.

In the Indian summer of the Johnson presidency, Robert C. Wood, undersecretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, sympathized with the Republicans.

"They are going to have a terrible time," he said.

Bleak to Frightening

"The present is bleak. The future is frightening," said the U.S. Conference of Mayors in a statement last July.

Almost 150 million persons now live in urban America, either in the old and often decaying central cities themselves or in the rings of mostly white of the "Nation's Cities," the publication of the National League of Cities, said the mayors believe a total effort by federal, local and state government and the private sector is needed.

The scope of the problem makes most experts dubious about the Nixon hopes for reduced federal expenditures.

"The people in charge are too smart for that," said Raymond Mack, director of the new urban studies center at Northwestern University.

Nixon's major hope seems to be in winning massive involvement on the part of private economic power—and effort that was begun by the Johnson administration. The President-elect has all but ruled out heavy new federal investments.

He sounded the theme throughout his campaign, calling repeatedly for federal tax incentives "to get private resources and energies where the need is."

Nixon proposed tax credits to induce business to hire and train the unemployed, a national computer job bank to "bring job-seeking men and the man-seeking jobs together" and tax incentives to firms that locate branch offices or new plants in poverty areas.

Ominous Ring

The emphasis on private involvement has an ominous ring for many mayors.

Saugerties Church Approves New Hall

SAUGERTIES — at a special Charge Conference of the Saugerties United Methodist Church, a unanimous vote of approval was given to proceed with plans for the new Education Building and Fellowship Hall. Authorization was also given to the Building Committee of the Church to proceed with detailed plans leading to groundbreaking in the spring or early summer.

The proposed new Education Building and Fellowship Hall will include 12 new classroom areas. Designated areas thus far for these classrooms will include: Pre-two-year olds (Crib-Nursery), two and three year olds, Kindergarten four year olds, and Kindergarten five year olds.

To utilize the building facilities more economically, use is planned during the week as well as on Sunday morning to accommodate the 700 members of the church and the church school enrollment of over 300. A lounge with snack-kitchen and fireplace for use by youth and adults will convert into two classrooms on Sunday, and two additional areas will be used as a pastor's office and church secretary's office during the week while used by older classes on Sunday morning.

The Fellowship Hall is designed to seat 306 persons and to permit the seating of 200 persons for dinners. Included in the Fellowship Hall will be a projection booth so audio-visuals can be utilized and not inconvenience activities on the main floor, and for light projection to the stage area for drama and programs.

The new Education Building has been designed so that a second floor may be added at a later date to include classrooms, classroom office areas, and a Church Library with fireplace.

The proposed new addition to the church was unanimously approved by 60 persons attending the meeting on December 4. The meeting was chaired by the Rev. Paul Allen, District Superintendent of the Hudson North District of the New York Conference of the United Methodist Church. Norman Nitschke, Spaulding Lane, Saugerties, is chairman of the Building Committee, and William Brogan of Post Street, Saugerties, is vice chairman.

St. James Man Still Serious After Holdup

A 74-year-old motel operator who was brutally beaten late Wednesday night in a robbery that netted three thieves $20, remained in "serious" condition today at Kingston Hospital.

State Police are continuing their search for the suspects, two white men and a Negro, reportedly who pistol-whipped James Carrubba, operator of the St. James Motel on Route 9W in Lake Katrine.

Carrubba is suffering from a fractured skull.

The Baltimore oriole takes its name from its colors, orange and black, which are the same as those of the House of Baltimore.

of the financial burden that has driven city tax rates up almost 125 per cent since 1955.

Costs shot up in the post-World War II period as the age of the automobile opened up the suburbs. Both people and plants began pulling out of the cities in search of open space. Easy mortgages sped a housing boom and highway construction made countryside relatively painless.

But as the middle class, with its factories, offices and stores began the awesome outward sprawl, left behind were the old suburbs. Many were too poor to leave the cities even if they wanted to, and many were Negroes, trapped by both poverty and discrimination.

The poor were joined by new waves of rural poor forced off the farm by a revolution in technology.

The cities, increasingly hard pressed to provide more services, found themselves with less and less money to spend.

Hobbits Write Santa

'Tis the season to be jolly but not so for the managers and loyal patrons of the Ulster Coffee House.

Due to financial difficulties, the Hobbit is being forced to move from its present location at 73 Crown Street and find more economical "digs."

In an effort to enlist the best possible help, unhappy Hobbiters have addressed the following open letter to Santa Claus.

Dear Santa,

We Hobbits are losing our hole, and, since you have little people working for you, we thought that you would certainly understand our predicament. Get to have to leave our home at Christmas time.

We are gentle people, kindly, and reluctant to fight. However, we do need a place to provide entertainment for the youth of the area—a place for them to meet their friends, make new friends, and try exotic coffee drinks.

Our present dwelling place is too expensive. We are willing to work to fix up a new place, if it's some place we can afford.

Could you help us? It would be a great Christmas present, because we don't have much time.

Maybe you could influence the community to help us find a new home.

We wish you and all your helpers a Happy Holiday.

Sincerely,
The Hobbits of 73 Crown Street.

Con Edison Workers End Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking employees of Consolidated Edison Co. have voted overwhelmingly to accept a new contract and end a 13-day walkout.

Local 1-2 of the Utility Workers Union announced Friday that its members had voted 11,741 to 3,760 to accept the new pact.

Another union that had been on strike, Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, approved the contract last week and has already returned to work.

James Beamish, business manager of Local 1-2, said members of his union would return to work at midnight tonight.

The walkout by 20,500 workers caused no major disruptions in gas or electric service for Con Edison's nine million customers in New York and Westchester. Service was maintained by 4,500 supervisors, who worked 12-hour shifts to keep the company's automated equipment operating.

However, meter reading, routine maintenance and other nonessential services were suspended during the walkout.

The new contract, retroactive to Dec. 1 and effective through March 10, 1971, provides a 9 per cent general wage increase this year and a 6 per cent increase in 1970.

The wage increases were contained in a previous offer that was accepted by the leaders of the two unions but rejected by the membership.

However, the new contract also includes improvements in pension benefits, vacation time and premium pay for holiday work. These were the major issues in the strike.

Cornell Blacks Give Ultimatum

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Negro students at Cornell University say Cornell President James Perkins has until Wednesday to accept their demands and constitution for an autonomous black college.

Perkins held a news conference Friday to comment on the list of demands presented him by a group of black militants who want, among other things, $250,000 of Cornell money and a free hand in conducting an Afro-American Institute.

Perkins, while agreeing to some of the demands, said the idea of a separate college for Negroes would be illegal and out of his jurisdiction.

A number of black students took part in several demonstrations across the campus Friday, including one outdoors entitled "Beating Up Whitey." Several fist-fights between whites and Negroes broke out during the demonstration.

In another demonstration, Negro students visited three Cornell libraries and piled books on checkout desks.

The protests have been carried out in the name of the Afro-American Society, an established campus group that claims to represent half of the school's 250 Negro students.

Perkins agreed to give Negro students a separate dining room on campus and said he would seek funds immediately for expanding the present Afro-American studies program at the school and would find a Negro to head the program.

The Negro students, however, told Perkins in a letter that they had set up a timetable for discussion of the proposed separate college.

The protesting students said they would tell Perkins by Monday the name of the man they want to be director of the Afro-American Institute and Tuesday would present a formal charter for the separate college.

They will be prepared to negotiate on the point of the separate college then, they said.

By Wednesday, the students said, they will offer a final draft for the Cornell-financed, autonomous black institute.

It was reported that Perkins had refused the demands for the separate college Wednesday when it first was proposed to him.

During the news conference, Perkins said the university would "tolerate" demonstrations like Friday's as long as they do not infringe on the rights of other students, destroy property or "impede the normal business of the university."

President Erbsstein said that until recently, nearly everyone who became a computer professional did so through apprentice-type training or as a user who became interested in computing.

"Since these methods are very inefficient," he said, "we have, by our ability to manufacture better and better machinery, outstripped our ability to educate people who can make intelligent use of the machinery."

"It is now our problem to provide a graduate with the ability to grow with a highly dynamic field and to provide technical leadership for it," he continues. "In order to do this we must design a program that stresses the essence of computer technology and avoids its transient and accidental aspects. One of our major concerns is to interweave the new resources offered by computer systems with the educational goals of the entire campus, particularly in the area of service courses for business and technology programs."

UCCC Gets $10,598 U.S. Grant For Study on Computer Course

STONE RIDGE — Ulster County Community College has received a $10,598 federal grant to conduct a study leading to a proposed Computer Technology program from the College, President George B. Erstein announced today.

The grant, received under the Vocational Education Act of 1963, was approved by the Bureau of Two-Year College Programs and the Division of Supervision of the State University of New York.

The grant will enable the College to accelerate the introduction of a two-year degree program of computer technology, and will ensure that it will be as appropriate as possible to the needs of the local area and of community college students.

President Erbsstein said the College will use the grant to make a study of a two-year degree program in computer technology and also to evaluate possible service courses to other occupational programs such as business, mechanical technology, electrical technology, medical laboratory technology and para-medical programs.

The grant funds will be used to study and para-medical programs, activities that must be completed in order for the College to establish a computer center and associated courses.

The research and study work will be carried out under the direction of Walter Bartlett, an

Fleischmanns Man Is Killed; 5 Auto Crashes in the Area

By CHARLES BERMPHOL

FLEISCHMANN'S—A 46-year-old Delaware County man was killed on the Massachusetts Turnpike yesterday while area law enforcement agencies reported five traffic accidents and two separate arrests on illegal weapons charges.

According to United Press International, James Miller of Fleischmanns was killed near Auburn, Mass., when he stopped his truck apparently to assist two vehicles which were disabled on the Massachusetts Turnpike.

Reports state that Miller walked across the median strip to the opposite lane to assist the drivers of two cars and was struck by a car driven by Ruth Crouse, 61, of West Hartford, Conn.

Three persons were injured at about 8:25 p. m. Friday in a two-car accident on Route 299 near the Village of New Paltz. One of the three was admitted to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Admitted were Joseph Morano, 72, of Highland; Anthony Lombardo, 57, of the Bronx and Edward J. Salch, 42, of Yorktown Heights, were also injured but not hospitalized, according to Highland State Police.

Lombardo, troopers said, was heading west on 299 when his car collided with the westbound Salch vehicle. Police said that Salch attempted to make a left turn in front of the Lombardo car when the accident occurred. The Highland man was a passenger in the Lombardo car.

Morano is in "satisfactory" condition at the hospital.

Two out-of-state truck drivers were arrested yesterday near the Green County Town of Catskill for reportedly illegally carrying revolvers.

Thruway Police reported that at 9:45 a. m. yesterday Gerald Kolmer, 27, of Kingsville, Tex., was picked up for carrying a 22-caliber revolver when his truck was stopped for a routine check in Catskill.

Arrested before Catskill Town Justice George Carl, Kolmer pleaded guilty for illegal firearm possession and was fined $50 and released.

At 1:45 p. m., Thruway Troopers stopped a truck operated by Norman Swank, 37, of Hoyt, Kans., and a routine check turned up a 32-caliber revolver. Swank pleaded guilty before Village of Catskill Justice John Morrison and was fined $25.

In both cases the guns were confiscated.

One-Car Crashes

Several one-car accidents were reported by the State Police in Leeds and two of the mishaps occurred with deer being the victims.

At 4:45 p. m., Charles Field, 26, of Box 98, East Jewett, while traveling west on Route 23C, smashed into and killed a deer that had made its last attempt at crossing a highway. At 5 p. m., Robert J. White, 33, of 57 North Street, Catskill, while traveling south on Route 9W in the Town of New Baltimore, also struck and killed a deer.

There were no human injuries and no arrests were made.

At 6 p. m., Gilles Boudreau, 34, of Ossining, was arrested for driving while intoxicated on Old Route 23 in the Town of Catskill. Failing to negotiate a curve, the car went off the highway and struck an information sign and a rock. Boudreau was awaiting arraignment.

At 8 p. m., Robert B. Andrews of Catskill suffered lacerations of the scalp when his car went off a private road and hit a rock near the Alpha Cement plant. No arrest was made.

Deaf-Mute Boy Abandoned By Parents With 67 Cents

MALAGA, Spain (UPI)—Over and over the young deaf mute wrote, "I want my dad. I want my dad."

But Spanish police said they believe neither Peter Williams' dad nor mother want him. Police have launched a nationwide search for the British couple, who apparently abandoned their 16-year-old deaf-mute son with 67 cents in his pocket on a Malaga street.

Peter walked into a Spanish police station Tuesday and wrote his story on sheets of paper for police officers. Police said the youth wrote he did not know his London home address or even the full names of his parents.

According to his story, Peter arrived in Malaga Tuesday with his parents and two brothers, aged 8 and 18, from Almeria. They were traveling by car.

Peter wrote that his father parked the car on Columbus Avenue in front of a local newspaper office and gave him 40 pesetas (67 cents).

Later, Peter returned to the spot where the car had been parked but found it and his family gone. Police said the family has not stopped in any police station to inquire about their son.

Since Tuesday Peter has been in the hands of Spanish officials and the British vice-consul in Malaga. He has been given a medical checkup and continually questioned about his home and parents.

Thomas Tuite, the British vice-consul, said the youth keeps writing, "I want my dad."

Radio stations and newspapers throughout southern Spain have broadcast and published appeals in both Spanish and English for information to help find the boy's family, but so far to no avail.

When Peter was shown a map of London, he was unable to locate the area where he had lived with his family. He wrote that he used to stay at home in London and not go out on the streets.

Since Tuesday Peter has been in the hands of Spanish officials and the British vice-consul in Malaga. He has been given a medical checkup and continually questioned about his home and parents.

Thomas Tuite, the British vice-consul, said the youth keeps writing, "I want my dad."

Radio stations and newspapers throughout southern Spain have broadcast and published appeals in both Spanish and English for information to help find the boy's family, but so far to no avail.

When Peter was shown a map of London, he was unable to locate the area where he had lived with his family. He wrote that he used to stay at home in London and not go out on the streets.

MALAGA, Spain (UPI)—Over and over the young deaf mute wrote, "I want my dad. I want my dad."

But Spanish police said they believe neither Peter Williams' dad nor mother want him. Police have launched a nationwide search for the British couple, who apparently abandoned their 16-year-old deaf-mute son with 67 cents in his pocket on a Malaga street.

Peter walked into a Spanish police station Tuesday and wrote his story on sheets of paper for police officers. Police said the youth wrote he did not know his London home address or even the full names of his parents.

According to his story, Peter arrived in Malaga Tuesday with his parents and two brothers, aged 8 and 18, from Almeria. They were traveling by car.

Peter wrote that his father parked the car on Columbus Avenue in front of a local newspaper office and gave him 40 pesetas (67 cents).

Later, Peter returned to the spot where the car had been parked but found it and his family gone. Police said the family has not stopped in any police station to inquire about their son.

Government Approves Pay TV; Wants Cablevision Expanded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Newly formed Federal Communications Commission (FCC) during the Kennedy administration, called commercial television "the vast wasteland."

His indictment of television programming has been echoed since by scores of other critics—many of whom have been disappointed by the offerings so far on "educational" TV.

The FCC responded to the debate Friday by announcing two long-awaited decisions that could eventually revolutionize American television and greatly broaden the range of viewing fare.

First, the regulatory agency authorized the start of "pay-TV" broadcasting within six months (June 12, 1969) in any community already served by four conventional stations.

Second, it proposed expansion of Community Antenna Television (CATV) systems so that they can operate in the nation's 100 largest cities.

The FCC authorization for pay-TV was conditional. The six-month waiting period was specified to provide time for both congressional and judicial review of its action in view of the controversy over whether the FCC has authority to control or authorize pay-TV systems.

Under the regulations set forth Friday by FCC Chairman Rosel H. Hyde, pay-TV subscribers would pay a fee to see first-run movies, major sports events and other entertainment.

The FCC proposals covering the multimillion dollar CATV industry—known as "cable" television—were designed to put a greater variety of programming within reach of the public.

The agency suggested that all but the smallest CATV systems be required to originate some programming on their own in addition to the shows they present by carrying signals sent by free television.

"We feel it is unfair for CATV distributors to compete with tv broadcasters who must get their programs into the market without also having to originate some programs," Hyde said.

The nation's 2,000 to 3,000 CATV systems began as a means of carrying clear television signals by cable and microwave to rural and remote mountainous areas, where a home antenna would normally pick up a "snowy" picture if any image at all. A subscriber pays a fee to have his set hooked into the cable.

CATV industry leaders viewed the proposals with alarm but Hyde said during a news conference Friday that the commission was simply seeking to stimulate and explore CATV's full potentiality.

The key provision in this area would require CATV systems to get permission from the originating stations to transmit a long-distance signal from Los Angeles, for example, to customers in New York City. The program imported could then be transmitted to CATV subscribers within a 35-mile radius of the city.

Until now, CATV systems have not tried to import signals for use in the nation's 100 top markets because of regulations providing that they must prove their operations are in the public interest.

The commission will hold hearings late in January on its proposed CATV rules dealing with importation of distant signals and others regarding program origination, technical standards, and reporting requirements.

Business, Development

Area Men Named to Committee

NEW YORK — Eugene H. Morrison, president of Orange County Trust, was elected to the board of directors of New York Business Development Corporation at a meeting of the corporation's stockholders and members.

Morrison will represent the corporation's Region Four (Mid-Hudson) on the 15-man board.

A Region Four loan committee was elected at the annual gathering and includes Meyer Regenbogen, president of The First National Bank and Trust Company, Ellenville; Fabian L. Russell, president of F. L. Russell Corporation, Mount Marion; Edwin T. Strong, vice-president of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, Poughkeepsie; and E. Daniel Thoss, executive vice-president of Middletown Savings Bank.

Dorr W. Warner, president of the Endicott Trust Company, was elected chairman of the Board of Directors, replacing Lester W. Herzog Jr., president of Albany's National Commercial Bank and Trust Company.

Warner had served as president of the lending corporation.

In Warner's annual report to stockholders he said the company had approved loans for a total of more than $83-million in twelve years of actual operation.

The company is privately financed and serves as a lending corporation to sound enterprises which cannot obtain funds from conventional lending sources.

The election of officers was held following the 14th annual meeting of stockholders and members. Terms on the board of directors are for one year.

The Handcraft Club of Cooperative Home Extension held its annual Christmas luncheon Thursday, at the Sawyerkill Restaurant recently. The chairman, Mrs. Charlotte Althiser, welcomed the 42 members and guests in attendance and gifts were exchanged.

The committee in charge of arrangements was Mrs. Emma Bennett, Mrs. Mildred Schuchardt, Mrs. Eleanor Rothe, and Miss Alice McNally.

Members are asked to note that there will be a change in next month's meeting date. It will be held on the second Thursday, Jan. 9.

REA Workers Strike — NEW YORK (UPI)—The 10-day-old wildcat strike of Railway Express Agency workers spread Friday to Westchester and Rockland Counties and to northern New Jersey as talks in Washington failed to effect a settlement.

New Labor Secretary: — By NEIL GILBRIDE — WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Nixon's secretary of labor is against strikes by public employees, believes in a minimum of government interference and doesn't think wage-price guidelines would stem inflation.

George Shultz, dean of the University of Chicago Business School, told his first news conference Friday that some strikes may be of such impact on the nation's economy that Labor Department officials will have to step in.

But "my own philosophy on governmental intervention in labor disputes is to go very softly on it," he said.

Shultz said the vast majority of the nation's labor disputes are settled without strikes and that the nation's free enterprise system requires a respect for the right to strike, even though a strike may be unpleasant.

But "I deplore strikes of public employees," who work for state, county and city governments, he said. Such strikes have been increasing in number and militancy in the last few years.

On wage-price guidelines, a policy President Johnson tried with only limited success, Shultz said his own views were that such guidelines don't work.

Shultz said that in general he believed government officials should try to help unions and companies in their bargaining efforts.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 14, 1968

Legislators Must Act

The report of F. Roy Madgwick, assistant director of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, that the large built-in labor supply in this area will be an inducement for new industry to locate here, should bestir Ulster County Legislators to make the total Ulster County community atmosphere attractive so that it can be sold as a desirable place for industry to conduct its operations.

In competing for new industry with other counties in this region, Ulster must create a product that has an advantage it can use effectively in selling the community. This product must show officials who are pursuing long-range plans for adequate highways, for traffic flow and for water supply, refuse disposal, mixed land use, zoning, community and recreational programs and airport facilities.

The future of Ulster County and its economy, which should be the prime concern to all of us, depends on orderly planning and our power to grow and meet the demands of the future. Unplanned growth is both destructive and expensive. It is destructive of the values which we wish to see preserved and strengthened; expensive in its ultimate impact on the tax dollar.

Unplanned growth is expensive to local governments in particular. Planning responsive to the community's manifold needs is an extremely practical pursuit.

The first step for Ulster County Legislators to take in meeting the problems and opportunities that will come within the projected growth in population of 60 per cent in the years ahead is to adopt a sales tax so that we will be able to provide these vital community services.

Certainly real estate cannot bear the burden of furnishing adequate services needed for this growth. If it is to be done, it will have to be through other taxes than on real estate and the one efficient, equitable tax for the purpose is a sales tax. And it should be kept in mind that quick action is necessary for it could be pre-empted by the state, which is hinting at an increase in its sales tax.

The Legislators must realize that unnecessary delay will be a disservice to the community and will deny to people the benefits to which they are entitled.

Search for Talent

Remembering that Richard M. Nixon was launched on his career of public office by answering a classified advertisement for a young man willing to stand for Congress, it is not surprising to find him seeking 2,000 men and women on the basis of qualifications rather than campaign contributions or political affiliations.

The President-elect has set up what he calls "an unprecedented search for talent" in letters to some 80,000 culled from "Who's Who in America," asking them to recommend prospective Federal aids and enclosing two copies of a confidential resume for Federal Government appointment. At stake are 2,000 jobs at salaries ranging from $10,000 to $28,000 at sub-Cabinet level.

Harry Flemming, 28, son of Arthur S. Flemming, Kingston native, who was Eisenhower's Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is the director of Staff Search and Selection. He hopes to get a cross-section of the country, eager young people who want to serve their country and be a part of the action.

It is a fresh approach at least and should turn up a lot of the very talent needed to give the new administration the image of youth and devoted service.

Administrators, Policy Makers in Nixon Cabinet

WASHINGTON—As the problems of government change in scope from time to time, so do the functions of a President's Cabinet. Mere announcement by President-elect Nixon of the names of the Twelve men who are to be his Cabinet secretaries or even a reading of their biographies doesn't tell the real story of how the group will operate under the new administration.

William P. Rogers, for example, who is to be appointed Secretary of State, is not a foreign-policy expert. But he is a good administrator and, as a former head of the Department of Justice, he knows a great deal about the organization problems inside a big government department.

What Mr. Nixon has done is to pick a Cabinet in which certain members will be policy makers and others will be administrators who will carry out the policies laid down by the President and some of the special advisers he will have at his elbow.

Thus, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, as Presidential Assistant on National Security, will be able to give his full time at the White House to the study of all aspects of foreign policy without being encumbered, as a Secretary of State normally is, with the duties of supervision of the assistant secretaries and the heads of the various divisions of the huge department, including its many embassies and missions abroad.

Unquestionable Mr. Nixon will make foreign policy based upon the advice given him by Dr. Kissinger and on suggestions that come from his Secretary of State, who will be transmitting ideas submitted by the officials in close contact with day-by-day diplomatic developments.

As for fiscal and monetary policies, Mr. Nixon will depend largely on the recommendations of his Secretary of the Treasury, David M. Kennedy, who is at present chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Company and a member of the Federal Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve System. He was on the staff of the Federal Reserve board for 19 years and became special assistant to the board's chairman. He later served as a special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury during the Eisenhower Administration. So he has an intimate knowledge of the many technical questions that arise in the treasury department.

On financial problems, Mr. Nixon will have, too, the help of Maurice Stans, a former Director of the Budget, who is now to become Secretary of Commerce, and the assistance of the new budget director, Robert P. Mayo, who worked for the Treasury Department from 1941 to 1960.

There are broad questions of policy involved in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare as well as in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. But the Cabinet secretaries of these departments will have the benefit of the advice given by Dr. Patrick Moynihan, who will head up the new office of urban affairs in the White House. The Secretary of Transportation and the Vice President also will be members of this agency.

There will be other combinations of Cabinet officers and special White House advisers who will work together to make policy—subject, of course, to the final approval of Mr. Nixon himself.

Some Cabinet posts, like that of the Postmaster General, are primarily administrative jobs. In the case of other Cabinet secretaries, too, the chief requirement is to administer the statutes enacted by Congress which set forth the policy to be followed in the expenditure of public funds.

The Department of Agriculture, The interior Department and The Department of Labor are largely autonomous and can deal with their own internal questions without special staffs at White House.

Mr. Nixon has chosen a Cabinet consisting of men who will work closely with him and who will be amenable to the suggestions resulting from the research carried on by the special staff of advisers at the White House whose appointments have already been announced.

There have been suggestions that the Cabinet itself should act as a group of policymakers, with a general manager on career official appointed to handle the administration of each department. But Mr. Nixon apparently feels that he himself must concentrate on policymaking and that all the Cabinet officers are not necessarily able to advise on policies or matters outside their own departments.

Drew Pearson Says Sen. Hart Is Worthy Successor To Crusading Estes Kefauver

WASHINGTON—During his first years in the Senate, Phil Hart of Detroit was known chiefly as the owner, with his family, of the Detroit Tigers baseball team and the Detroit Lions football team. His wife and children spent most of their time in Michigan and the Senator commuted between Detroit and Washington.

In the last couple of years, however, the quiet-spoken Hart has emerged as a placement for the late Senate battler, Estes Kefauver, champion of the American consumer and foe of monopoly. Hart is head of the 'd Kefauver committee on anti-monopoly.

His most recent battle is one which won't make him very popular in Michigan where the automobile is king. But it has made him popular with millions of other Americans who get stung by unfair repair bills when they take their cars to garages. Hart has disclosed that the nation's auto repair bill runs to between $20 and $25 billion a year, that the price of auto parts has skyrocketed 52 per cent from 1960 to 1967 and has gone up almost ten per cent more in the last year—far beyond the general increase in the cost of living.

However, Hart's probbers have only scratched the surface, and already the auto lobby—which originates in Hart's home, Detroit—has been rolling up its big guns and ammunition for rebuttal in January.

In fact it has already started. Sen. Roman Hruska, R-NEB., the only Czech-American in the Senate, emerged during the first day as the auto spokesman. This was not surprising, because Hruska has been the open, unabashed spokesman of almost every industry against the consumer.

REPAIR MAN'S CHAMPION Hart battled higher-priced drugs and did his best to block an investigation of the alleged drug monopoly. He has also been the spokesman for the big cattlemen and has backed a bill putting import quotas chiefly hitting Australian and New Zealand meat which would send up the price of hamburgers and hot dogs.

During the Hart probe of the racket-ridden auto repair industry, the flowing-maned GOP Senator from Nebraska argued:

"I am sure some of these things will be shot down as we proceed in these hearings. I hope so because if they are not the country is in a bad fix."

As Hruska spoke, a photographer for General Motors was snoopng about the hearing room taking pictures of exhibits displayed by a witness, William N. Leonard of Hofstra University.

Leonard had accused the big auto makers of being more interested in selling new cars than in adequate repairs of their automobiles in use.

"I did not come here to praise the industry, perhaps, but neither did I come here to bury it, or even attempt to, because I believe in the American enterprise system," Leonard told Hruska.

"The pattern of these hearings is to pillory and crucify and downgrade the industry," proclaimed Sen. Hruska. "I deplore that because I do not believe it has a place in America. Maybe we ought to adopt the rapacious Russian system of producing and servicing cars. Maybe we ought to have the government do it."

"I do not like the Russian system," replied Prof. Leonard. "They will not let their people have cars, except in limited quantity. I like the American system where we are free."

However, the Nebraska Senator was set back by an even bigger bomb dropped by Glen F. Krieger, owner of a car repair diagnostic center in Denver. He testified that tests in his shop showed that only one out of 100 is being repaired properly today. "There is a certain amount of cancer in the industry that needs correction," said

Krieger. "I am somewhat ashamed that I am part of the automobile industry because of what we see in our day-to-day efforts. It is very frustrating. I am depressed almost every day." "And for a good reason," broke in Sen. Hart. "To be otherwise, I think, would be to ignore unpleasant reality. It is not just additional cost to automobile owners, but it is the additional exposure to injury and death."

"That is one of the unfortunate factors in the state safety system," said Krieger. "Many people feel confident that their car is safe with that sticker on it. Unfortunately, it is not true in many cases." "Well, 99 per cent of the 5,000 (car owners) who went to you found less than a happy outcome," prodded Sen. Hart.

"Yes, sir," replied Krieger. "They found out what was wrong with their cars and in many cases they were completely shocked."

Contagious Washington

C. R. Smith, the genial Texan who left American Airlines to become Secretary of Commerce, tells a story on his friend, Leonard Marks, director, illustrating what happens to those who stay too long in Washington.

"The best thing about a government job," says Secretary Smith, "is having a car and chauffeur. You get used to it. Mrs. Marks says her husband got so used to it that after he got out of government and she was driving the car, Leonard got in the back seat."

Note: Secretary Smith, who retires in January, is going to remain in Washington, will not go back to American Airlines. Marks has always lived here. Sen. Mike Monroney, Democrat, defeated in Oklahoma, will live in Washington. Sen. Tom Kuchel, Republican, defeated in California, will practice law in Washington. Sen. Wayne Morse, if the recount goes against him, will move back to Oregon.

Wilson, Lindsay and Duryea Hope Rocky Will Change Mind

By CHARLES DUMAS Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y.—It had to be a bad day for Malcolm Wilson and John Lindsay and Perry Duryea.

That is, the day, earlier this week, when they picked up the morning newspapers and discovered that Nelson A. Rockefeller had decaled his intention of running for a fourth term as governor.

It must have been especially disappointing for Wilson, who had toiled faithfully in Rockefeller's shadow for 10 years as lieutenant governor, waiting for a chance to move up.

Only a few weeks ago, Rockefeller publicly let it be known that he was available for a post in president-elect Nixon's cabinet. That was a good day for Wilson, because he would succeed immediately to the governorship upon a Rockefeller resignation.

As the weeks slipped by, however, it became apparent that Rockefeller would not join the Nixon team in Washington. Well, at least there was the consolation that the governorship might open up at the end of Rockefeller's present term, in 1970.

The same prospect carried much appeal for Lindsay, the embattled mayor of "un-governable" New York City. Lindsay intimates have been saying he dearly would love to run for governor, not only as an escape from the mayoralty but also as a stepping stone to the presidency.

Gubernatorial ambition also has afflicted Duryea, who is about to step up to the powerful post of Assembly speaker. For Duryea the timing was perfect—two years to make his mark as speaker, and then a bid for governor.

But none of the trio entertains serious thoughts of seeking the governorship, as long as Rockefeller wants to keep it. They could challenge him in a primary, of course, but that exercise carries little appeal.

For the moment, after the initial gloom wears off, the would be successors are consoling themselves with the thought that perhaps Rockefeller really doesn't mean it, after all.

Political strategists at the Capitol agree that, even if Rockefeller does not intend to run again, he was politically wise to say what he did at this point.

By declaring himself a likely fourth-term "lame duck" handicap from his political weaponry. It is axiomatic in politics that authority dissipates as an officeholder's tenure draws to an evident end.

For example, during the forthcoming session of the legislature, rank-and-file Republican would be less likely to bend to the governor's bidding if they thought his power to enforce his will-through awards to patronage and signing of vetoes of bills—was soon to end.

County chairmen and other political officials also would tend to drift away from the Rockefeller camp and collect in new circles of alliance, hoping to get on the good side of the next governor early.

Thus, declaring for a fourth term tends to stabilize the political situation. And, as Rockefeller said, his intention is "subject to future change."

Despite public comments by Wilson, Lindsay and Duryea, that's what they really hope.

New Foreign Strategy for U.S.

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA)—The time is ripe for a radical change in U.S. foreign policy.

The tools are available. The techniques are known. The payoffs would be great.

Today foreign policy is largely based on economic and military aid.

But most U.S. aid should be political. It should aim at helping countries and people at their request, in developing sound representative political institutions of their choosing.

With sound institutions, rapid economic development is possible. Without them, economic development may be ragged and uncertain, regardless of how much economic aid the United States pours in.

With strong political institutions, a weakly armed country can make war very costly (perhaps prohibitively costly) for a would-be invader.

With a limited amount of international backing, a politically sound country can force even a strong, ruthless government to think a long time before invading.

The United States need only look to its own past successes and failures to realize the truth of these theories.

The United States (and certain allies) won World War result of our efforts, our understanding and our encouragement, these two countries developed stable, self-governing political systems which today are the basis of their economical strength and their military potential.

That is, we helped build countries in which the average man has a say and II after the shooting stopped with our highly successful political aid in Japan and West Germany. Partly as a stake in his government. We "lost" World War I against Germany, though we won the shooting war, because we did not apply this principle of political aid.

We are failing to win thus far in South Vietnam because we have forgotten this principle which we applied so effectively after World War II. We have done far less than we could do to help the South Vietnamese develop their political institutions.

This is not to say that we should attempt to get Vietnam or any other country to ape the U.S. form of government. We would then have other puppets or rebels, neither of which would represent success.

We did not force Japan or Germany into our mold after World War II. Neither is a pale imitation of the United States.

The Japanese and the West Germans have developed their own institutions. They have taken some ideas from us, as we took some concepts from Europe in our development. But the Japanese and the West Germans have modified what they have taken and adapted what they have borrowed to their own historical backgrounds and their own objectives.

'Loner' DeGaulle to Help Rebuild NATO's Defenses

By LEON DENNEN

NEA Foreign News Analyst NEW YORK (NEA)—President De Gaulle is reported to be ready to join the United States, Britain and West Germany in an effort of breath fresh life into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This should be encouraging news for President-elect Nixon who has made it clear that strengthening NATO has a high priority in his foreign policy.

NATO was created as a Western alliance largely in response to Stalin's blockade of West Berlin in 1948. Its 14 members, including the United States and Canada, agreed to develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed aggression and to regard an attack on one as an attack on all.

However, after Stalin's death in 1953 and the inauguration by his successors of the so-called policy of peaceful coexistence there were disturbing signs of flagging interest in the alliance.

De Gaulle, who hoped to establish Europe as a "third force" balancing itself between Russia and the United States, withdrew France's troops from NATO's command in 1966. The British army of the Rhine was reduced from 53,000 to about 45,000 men and substantial reductions also considered by Belgium. In the United States, NATO's strongest nation, influential senators urged a massive withdrawal of American troops from Europe.

In the new era of East-West "detente," the breakup of NATO—or perhaps its gradual fading away—seemed inevitable.

But the Russian-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August was a rude awakening for the Western allies. Detente turned out to be a myth, after all. It was just another ideological weapon in Moscow's propaganda arsenal.

The fact is that Soviet foreign policy has become even harsher than it was under Stalin. Unlike the Kremlin's present rulers, Stalin never claimed that Russia had the legal right to intervene with military force in the domestic life of other Communist countries.

"People have begun to realize that there is no such thing as a clear-cut division between the defensive and expansionist policies of Soviet Russia in Europe," said Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of NATO.

Czechoslovakia was "not a transient episode, the effects of which can soon be ignored or forgotten."

The shock of Moscow's new hard line has resulted in rash of statements by leading politicians and military men in West calling for a re-evaluation of NATO.

European statesmen, including De Gaulle, who were busy building bridges to the East while NATO was disintegrating, now are insisting that "something must be done" to evolve a coordinated and convincing show of Western solidarity in response to the new threat from the East.

This new awareness in Europe will greatly facilitate Nixon's task of revitalizing NATO. But he must make it clear to the Western allies—who never lifted a finger to help the United States in Vietnam—that there is no turning the clock back. International co-operation and solidarity is a two-way street. Faced with mounting domestic problems, the United States is no longer able to shoulder the burden of affluent West Europe.

The United States and Europe will have to arrive at a common assessment of their political and security interests. They will have to decide just how far each is prepared to go in meeting the costs of defending West Europe.

Doing the Right Thing

BEAT ICE BOX RAIDING WITH INVITATION.

Dear Mrs. Post: Am I unreasonable when I expect my grandchildren — college and high school age — to ask before they make a visit to my cookie jar or refrigerator? In my younger days when I visited my grandmother's I was expected to ask permission.

Dear Mrs. H.: Nobody, whether a relative or not, has a right to help himself to food or drink in someone else's house without an invitation. Unless you have a certain part of the ice box or a certain cookie jar set aside for them and have told them that they are free to dig in, your grandchildren should always ask your permission. On the other hand, wouldn't you make more points with them if, when they arrived, you said, "The cookie jar is full" or "The Cokes are in the ice box"?

SMALL SPOONS INADEQUATE.

Dear Mrs. Post: I think I committed a faux pas last week when I served pound cake with strawberries. I expected our guests to eat the strawberries with the spoon and to break the cake into smaller pieces and eat it with their fingers. However, most of our guests ate the cake too with the small spoons, and it embarrassed me to see the men especially struggling with the inadequate table service. Should I have given each guest a cake fork as well as a spoon?

The spoons I used are of a fine design in stainless steel, four and a half inches in length and one inch across the bowl. Are these meant to be used with small or demi-tasse coffee cups only? — Mrs. Lawrence.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: Your spoons are for demi-tasse and should not have been used for dessert. The correct spoon for fruit is a dessert spoon — slightly larger than a teaspoon. Or if you do not have those, a teaspoon will do.

Pound cake, since it has no icing, may be picked up and eaten from the fingers. However, one usually offers a fork when cake is served, for those who prefer to eat it that way.

Brockport State Shades New Paltz, 54-53

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

NEW PALTZ — "I guess I should just take the loss and walk away," commented State University College, New Paltz basketball coach Doug Sheppard, "but how can you do something like that?"

"It's a crime, an absolute crime to lose a ballgame like that."

"Like that" was 54-53 in the closing seconds after leading most of the way. It was baffling Brockport, one of the best clubs in the State University of New York Athletic Conference with a couple of pretty zone combinations and then throwing the game away.

It was shooting 17 of 62 from the floor, which is about 27 and a half per cent and no way to play basketball.

"You're never going to win a game with that kind of shooting," Sheppard said as he looked down the list of statistics. Sam Garafalo, 3-15; Pete Kane, 6-15; Jim Leonardo, 4-12; Steve Dane, 2-8; Richie Josephs,

2-8. "I just don't know what I'm going to do."

"During the week I spend most of my time on defensive basketball. Maybe I'm wrong, maybe I should have them shoot more. We should've beaten that team by 15 points the way they were playing."

One point would have been enough. Enough to bring New Paltz its first conference win against a team the Hawks were never expected to come close to.

But Jeff Berry took a corner shot with ten seconds left in the first half instead of waiting and Rich Arnold converted for Brockport on a fast break. Or, if you'd rather, Pete Kane thought he could drive through two defenders and referee Leo Darling with 47 seconds left in the game and not only committed his fifth personal foul but did it after the shot. Mike Cusato converted the one and one to make the score 32-49 Brockport and put the game pretty much out of reach.

Or how about Brockport losing the ball on a traveling violation with the score 52-51 and seconds on the clock — and Josephs giving away the throw-in.

When you lose by one point the recriminations are endless. There must have been fifty mistakes that could have cost New Paltz the game, but in the end it all boils down to shooting. You don't win when you shoot 27.4 per cent, unless the other team is even worse. And if they are you've got to find another name for what you're doing because it isn't basketball.

Mauro Panaggio, the Brockport coach, was not exactly ecstatic either, despite the fact he came out a winner.

"I've never seen them play this badly," he said. "It's almost as if they fell asleep on the bus and haven't woken up yet. The way they were playing I was just happy the score stayed as close as it did to give us the chance to pull it out."

The Hawks played a slow, controlled ball game and built up a small lead through the first half. Never more than five points, however, and that margin was cut to three when Arnold scored at the buzzer.

Playing a sort of a switch zone in which they for the most part doubled up on the ball-handler, the Hawks repeatedly stole the ball from the hapless Eagles. They forced 14 turnovers in the first half and 15 more in the second as the lead mounted to five points again with nine minutes left.

Then everything slowly began to fall apart.

With five minutes and 19 seconds left to play, and the score 44-43, Jim Leonardo missed the

Golfers Tee Off Together; Settle PGA-APG Dispute

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The PGA and the APG have put down their war clubs and decided to tee off together again on pro golf's multi-million dollar tour.

The two organizations shook hands Friday evening on the agreement, ending a drawn-out feud that threatened to send the 52-year-old Professional Golfers' Association and the touring pros their separate ways on separate tours.

Under the merger, the touring pros will have a voice in policy-making decisions of the tour, the crux of the problem which caused the break four months ago. However, neither the PGA nor the break-away American Professional Golfers claimed victory in the settlement.

"I wouldn't call it a victory for the APG," said Sam Gates, attorney for the group. "We didn't go into this looking for a victory. We sought agreement by eliminating the sources of the disagreement."

The settlement returns the touring players to the PGA and ends their plans to establish a separate tour.

The APG, with most of the top pros, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, had signed contracts with 17 tournament sponsors. The combination of top names and a majority of tournaments on the $5.5 million tour would have left the PGA tour out in the cold.

Under the agreement, the tour will continue as a PGA program and those 17 tournaments will be transferred to the PGA, which will honor the commitments.

A tournament players division will be established within the PGA and will be governed by a tournament policy board with full authority over the conduct of the tour.

The board will consist of 10 directors, including four as yet unnamed tournament players; three PGA officials—PGA president Leo Fraser, Warren Orlick and William Clarke—and three distinguished businessmen.

The businessmen are J. Paul Austin of Atlanta, president of Coca-Cola Co.; George H. Love of Pittsburgh, chairman of the board of Consolidated Coal Co., and John D. Murchison of Dallas, one of the leading financial figures of the Southwest.

Eagles Won't Lie Down for Vikings

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

There's nothing like a show of integrity to spoil a pleasant reunion.

That might sound facetious to most people but not to the members of the Minnesota Vikings.

The Vikings will be playing the most important game of their National Football League history Sunday when they meet the Philadelphia Eagles for the first time since 1963, but things don't look as pleasant for Minnesota at Franklin Field as they did just two weeks ago.

Minnesota, deadlocked with the Chicago Bears for first place in the Central Division, desperately needs a victory Sunday and might have had things rather easy if the Eagles hadn't shown a streak of conscience last Sunday and refused to play dead for the New Orleans Saints.

Lose O. J.

Instead, the Eagles beat the Saints for their second triumph of the year and in so doing managed to lose the draft rights to halfback O. J. Simpson of Southern California.

That means the Vikings are in for a real scrap against the lowly Eagles, who have won two in a row after dropping their first 11 games. There's more than pride involved. Some of the Eagles' players have had good seasons despite the team's poor record and they would like to add to their credentials for use at the next contract talks.

Fullback Tom Woodeschick has been the most impressive Eagle, having virtually locked up second place in rushing behind Cleveland's Leroy Kelly. Woodeschick needs 133 yards rushing against the Vikings to reach the 1,000-yard plateau.

Came to Life

The Vikings' offense finally came to life last weekend after two dismal weeks in which they failed to score a touchdown. They scored 30 points against San Francisco, the most they had scored since routing Atlanta 47-7 in their opener.

The Vikings can win Sunday and still be eliminated from the race if Chicago wins. The two teams would finish in a tie and the Bears would claim victory to the division title since they beat Minnesota twice during the season.

Ganders Nip Red Raiders

STONE RIDGE — The Red Hook High School basketball team isn't having much luck with the teams in the Ulster County Athletic League.

Nipped by league leader Onteora in their season opener, the Raiders may have thought they would have an easier time with fourth place Rondout Valley here Friday night. But they lost another tough one 55-51 in the closing seconds.

The Ganders had led all the way until a Raider basket knotted the score at 50 with a minute left to play. Then Jim Rowe hit a jumper from 15 feet to give Rondout all the points it was going to need. Pete Koola hit on a hook and Rowe converted a foul shot to put the game out of reach.

All Red Hook could manage in the final minute was a foul shot by Bill Barringer.

Barringer and Koola shared high game honors with 21 points, with Jim Rowe adding 14 for the Ganders cause and Ralph Cort 15 for the Raiders.

Red Hook used only five players the whole game, which

Down to the Wire In the AFL West

Associated Press Sports Writer

One thing the Oakland Raiders won't have to worry about when they play San Diego in Sunday's key American Football League game is the scoreboard.

The Raiders can concentrate totally on the Chargers because Kansas City-Oakland's rival for the AFL's Western Division crown—is in action today. That means the Raiders will know exactly where they stand when they take the field against San Diego.

An Oakland victory can insure the Raiders a share of the Western title no matter how Kansas City makes out against Denver today. Of course, a Bronco upset over the Chiefs would leave the Raiders with a clear shot at the title.

In other AFL games Sunday,

New York, the Eastern Division champion, plays at Miami and Houston hosts Boston.

In the National League, Cleveland plays at St. Louis today with all other action set for Sunday. Green Bay will be at Chicago, Dallas at New York, Baltimore at Los Angeles, Minnesota at Philadelphia, Detroit at Washington, Pittsburgh at New Orleans and San Francisco at Atlanta.

If the Chiefs and Raiders come out of the weekend action still tied, they'll play off for the AFL's Western crown at Oakland Dec. 22. A week later, the AFL title game will be played in New York with the Jets hosting Oakland and Kansas City both take 11-2 marks into the weekend and both could be in for trouble. The Raiders barely escaped against Denver a week ago, winning 33-27, and the Broncos promise to make things every bit as tough for the Chiefs.

Kansas City eliminated San Diego from the Western race with a 40-3 romp last week and the Chargers would like to wipe out some of the embarrassment against Oakland.

The Raiders will still be without Kent McCloughan, the all-league cornerback who has missed six games with a knee ailment. McCloughan thought he might be able to play Sunday but Raiders' officials decided against it rather than risk an aggravation of the injury.

Houston, last year's Eastern champion, aims for a .500 finish against Boston with the Patriots completing another dismal season.

Ketcham Blasts Sawyers 73-59

WAPPINGERS FALLS—"It was the best we've looked to date," commented Saugerties High School basketball coach Bud Smith after his Sawyers dropped their second Dutchess County Scholastic League game in a row and third without a win this year to Roy C. Ketcham High School, 73-59 here Friday.

The Sawyers put together an 18 point second quarter to cut a 10 point Ketcham lead to seven at the half, but were outscored the rest of the way.

The Indians put the game out of reach with eight straight points in the third quarter.

"They dominated the boards with their big men," Smith said, noting the fact that Saugerties shot a dismal 3-20 from the foul line didn't help their cause very much.

Ed Bonnett led the Ketcham attack with 13 points.

Bill Rush had 12, and Bob Garrett and Chuck McKinney each had 10. Saugerties' Bill Benham was high man in the game with 24 points on 12 field goals and Roger Praetorius had 13 points.

The win kept Ketcham on top of the DCSL standings with an 8-2 mark and Saugerties on the bottom.

On the brighter side, the Sawyer junior varsity won its third straight, 45-37 behind Ray Beam's 16 point effort and Stan Rosenberg's 11.

The Sawyers host Poughkeepsie next Friday.

The Pioneers kept pace with Ketcham, romping to a 60-36 win over Beacon behind a 16 point performance from Joey Johnson.

In other DCSL action Roosevelt, with 26 points from Ron Blass, swept by Arlington 63-49. The Our Lady of Lourdes Cardinal Farley Military Academy was postponed because of a flu epidemic at Farley.

Kingston High Swimmers Still Looking at Po'kip

POUGHKEEPSIE—After seven straight tries, Kingston High is still looking for its first swimming victory over Poughkeepsie.

The powerful Pioneers overrode three new Kingston team records to defeat the Maroons 59-36 at the four-lane YWCA pool here Friday.

John Brinnier and Gene Gruner scored doubles for Coach Ron Gabriele's squad which opened its 1968-69 season against an obviously superior opponent.

The Kingston setback was highlighted by a rare defeat for Craig Murray, who was nipped by Bob Booke, PHS's only double winner, in the 160 yard individual medley. Murray's only other career loss was to Steve Riccio of Poughkeepsie last season.

Riccio captured the 100 yard backstroke in a 1:05.4 clocking

but Mike O'Hara's 1:11.9 in third place was good enough for a new KHS mark, eclipsing the old standard of 1:13.8 set by Bruce Hilton in 1967.

Gruner won the 60-yard freestyle in 29.02 to shave a full second off Charlie Plunkett's old mark of 30.02. He also took the 100 butterfly in 1:01.5.

John Brinnier, one of the new stars on the KHS team, picked up his double with 2:12.1 in the 200 yard freestyle and a 4:48.5 in the 400 freestyle. Murray set a new KHS record with a 1:11.6 performance in the 100 yard breaststroke. The old mark of 1:13.5 was set by Dave Roberts last February.

Brooke broke the Poughkeepsie 100-yard freestyle record in :58.8 seconds. The Pioneers swept both relays.

"They were very strong, too strong for us," said Coach Ron Gabriele of Kingston. "I think our kids did well. Several of the times we lost by what would have been beaten other schools." He said he was particularly pleased with the fine showing in the diving event where Bryan Williams and Mark Ohlson finished two-three in an event Kingston has had trouble picking up points in the past.

The Maroons travel to Marlboro Central for their second dual meet Wednesday.

Wallkill: Victory In Defeat

HIGHLAND—If there is ever any consolation in losing by a big score, Wallkill High School basketball coach Gene Bilboa had it here Friday night.

Wallkill has attended four basketball games this year, without managing to come close once, but Friday the Indians scored 53 points and that has to count for something.

Admittedly Highland scored 71 to even its record in the Ulster County Athletic League at 1-1, but other teams have scored more. Warwick hit 94 against Wallkill in the season opener.

No team, however, has let the Indians score 53 points. As a matter of fact, in their last two games, against Rondout Valley and Marlboro, they didn't even manage 30 points.

Hector Hita led the Indians with 18 points, a career high that may have to cherish until the next time the Highlanders came around on the schedule, and Lee Barrington paced coach Lem Atkins' squad with 21.

The loss kept Wallkill in the UCAL cellar, with an 0-3 slate and moved Highland into a tie for fourth. Wallkill travels to Pine Bush Tuesday for a contest that will see one of the two teams rack up its first league win.

Highland romped in the junior varsity game also, ripping the cold-handed junior Indians 34-15. John Barrington scored 11 points for the Highlanders and Bill McAfee paced Wallkill with six points.

Coleman Shades Rival St. Pat's

John A. Coleman Catholic High School started fast Friday night, but when the last quarter rolled around coach Pat Taaffe was glad his team could just hang on for the 64-59 win against archrival St. Patrick's of Newburgh.

Trailing by as much as 16 points, St. Pat's closed to 59-57 with a minute to go before Chris Seche put the game out of reach for Coleman with two from the free throw line.

"Three of my starters got into foul trouble early," Taaffe said, and that was when they started to catch up.

Don Hastings lead Coleman with 23 points and Pat Harder contributed 19. Jim Lettore had 21 for St. Patrick's, Jerry Impellittere 16 and Bill Shumstis 13.

Harder hit the boards for 20 rebounds and Seche was credited with eight assists.

St. Patrick's won the junior varsity 47-44 in overtime. Bob Whitney paced Coleman with 18 points.

Coleman's next contest is Dec. 27, when Taaffe's squad faces Nyack in the first round of the Albertus Magnus Christmas Tournament.

New Paltz Tramples Pine Bush, 71-52

27-24 in a nip and tuck see-saw battle, the Huguenots ripped off a 24 point third quarter to put the game out of reach.

The win puts New Paltz in a second place tie with Marlboro, both clubs 2-1 and a full game behind 3-0 Onteora.

Marist Will Meet Cortland Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mrs. Ron Petro will be an agonized fan tonight when Marist College and Cortland State meet for the championship at the Max Ziel Basketball Classic at Oswego State.

Her husband is the coach of the Marist team and her brother, Brian Drohan, is a junior guard for Cortland.

The classic, named for the sportsman who coached Oswego from 1921 to 1957, opened Friday night, Cortland whipped Oswego, 82-68, in the opening round, and Marist defeated Lock Haven of Pennsylvania, 96-73.

Cortland's victory over Oswego was its first since 1965.

Bob Christ scored 41 points for the winners, while Larry Miller led the hosts with 20.

Bill Gowen scored 23 points to lead Marist over Lock Haven, Ed Wright led the Pennsylvania team with 22 points.

In other games involving New York State teams:

Kansas State ignored the loss of three starters out with the flu and trounced Syracuse, 88-68, in the Sunflower basketball tournament.

The Wildcats shot 46 per cent from the floor in sending the Orangemen to their fourth loss in as many games. Jerry Venable led Kansas State with 21 points, while Bob Kouwe topped the losers with 20.

Grady O'Malley and John Marren scored 29 points each to lead Manhattan College to a 101-89 victory over Bridgeport. Bridgeport's Tony Barone led all scorers with 38 points.

Scott Singer and Ron Smalls scored two free throws apiece in the final 64 seconds to give Long Island U. a 60-57 victory over previously unbeaten Mt. St. Mary's.

Norwich of Vermont held off a late rally to post a 77-73 triumph over St. Lawrence. Greg Lewis scored 28 points in a losing cause.

Hamilton College went on a second-half scoring spurge to overpower New York Marquette, 118-75. Brooks McCuan paced the winners with 20 points.

Buffalo State came from behind to defeat Oneonta, 76-54. Charlie Jones scored 19 points for the losers, while Dick Bhr topped the winners with 17.

Amos Goodwine scored 13 points to lead Fredonia State to a 61-50 victory over Waterloo University of Ontario, Canada.

Potsdam State and Clarkson Tech exchanged the lead several times in the second half before Potsdam pulled out a 57-55 victory. Bill Menna led the winners with 10 points, while Russ Hall and Jack Phillips both scored 12 for Clarkson.

Indians Stop Iron Dukes

MARLBORO — The Ontario High School basketball team took over undisputed possession of first place in the Ulster County Athletic League here Friday night, by edging Marlboro 53-48.

Trailing throughout the first half, and being consistently out-hustled under the boards, Rod Patrick's Indians came from five points down to five points up as they outscored the Iron Dukes 17-7 in the third quarter.

Marlboro came back to within two points, 50-48, with a minute left in the game, but a rash of turnovers sealed their fate.

The Dukes, paced by Ken Brooks 15 point effort and 12 points from Dan Marsh, jumped out in front early as Jim Gerantine and Dan Martuscello controlled the backboards.

In all, Marlboro finished with 46 rebounds and Gerantine and Martuscello combined for 27 of them. Ontario managed only 23 rebounds all game as big Bob Klementis, the six foot five, seven-pick one, was held in check the whole distance.

Paul Pettinato led the Indians with 12 points and Marty Gahan contributed 10. Gahan was eight for nine from the foul line, and with Marlboro committing the bulk of the fouls the free throw line was the crux of the game.

Ontario finished the night at 19 for 27 from the circle. Marlboro at 14-23.

The win left Marlboro in a second place tie with New Paltz, both teams 2-1 in the UCAU. Ontario is now 3-0.

The Dukes took the junior varsity game 52-40, with John Clark's 22 point effort leading the way. Joe Bush was high man for Ontario with 15 points.

60 Million Saw 'Cabinet'

NEW YORK (AP) — When President-elect Nixon introduced his Cabinet to the nation's television audience Wednesday night on a three-network broadcast, about one-quarter of the entire population was watching. Both CBS and NBC ordered audience samples from the same research company, but since the research department of each used a different set of total estimates—they are usually broken down by audience that watched a portion and audience that tuned in during any average five minutes—each network came up with a different projection of the total. NBC's was 60 million viewers and CBS' was 50 million. But even with a 10-million difference, they are awesome statistics.

And, while on the subject of statistics, the program that recently drew the greatest amount of anger from viewers—"Heil Hitler," which started its broadcast on schedule Nov. 17 at the expense of the windup of the NBC pro football game—continues to justify itself. According to the authoritative Nielsen ratings, the program was the most popular special broadcast of the season, and attracted almost half the viewing audience.

In a list of specials published in the trade paper, Variety, the season's top 10 specials included Bob Hope's three shows, and shows starring some other old favorites, Jack Benny, Frank Sinatra and Tennessee Ernie Ford. Also on the list were the Ann-Margret show and the Miss Teen-age America Pageant.

Midseason is a time to repair weak spots in the TV network fabric by getting rid of shows without popular appeal and replacing them with new ones. It is also a time to try to remodel other shows in hopes that change will improve ratings, although historically it rarely has.

NBC will attempt some repairs on its day-time game show, "Snap Judgment," by an unusual method. The format will be changed so that it will become exactly like old "Password." Password was a long-show CBS game show that was dropped last season—because its ratings were dropping. Funny business, television, ABC reluctantly abandoning its highly-praised, low rated "Dick Cavett Show" at the year's end, is not expected to try to find substitute material for the morning spot. Instead, it is expected to turn the 90 minutes back to its affiliated stations for local programming and start broadcasting network shows at noon.

NBC has made special, elaborate arrangements to hook electronically onto a celestial telescope in the planetarium of the Denver Museum of Natural History. Thus it will be able to show viewers live pictures of the Apollo 8 capsule in space as it approaches the moon.

"It will look," said a network spokesman, "like a bright, white dot on your television screen."

Jail Kubitschek, Others As Brazil Ruled by Force

By JOHN VIRTUE
RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—With Army backing, President Arthur Costa e Silva ruled Brazil by force today, having suspended Congress, seized newspapers and jailed scores of politicians including former President Juscelino Kubitschek. Federal police arrested Kubitschek as he was about to speak to law students in a movie theater Friday night. Military censors took over all newspa-

DEFENSE TALK — Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) talks with President-elect Richard M. Nixon in New York Friday on U. S. defense matters. Jackson, once considered a prime candidate for defense secretary in the Nixon Administration, did not specify Nixon's responses to his recommendations. Considered the Senate's expert on nuclear affairs, Jackson said he was authorized to say the President-elect "agrees that the number one priority in defense is the protection of our nuclear deterrent." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Laird Favors Review Of Defense Setup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Melvin Laird, President-elect Richard M. Nixon's Defense Secretary, favors a review of the defense establishment by a "top level committee or commission."

He said such a review would be conducted over six months or a year and is an idea the 46-year-old congressman from Wisconsin had expressed as far back as 1966.

Asked Friday if he still favored the proposal, Laird said:

Hopes For End
Laird said without elaboration he hoped the Vietnam War would be ended by next winter.

"By the time that we get to the preparation of our first budget," the first Nixon budget will be for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1970.

As the next defense secretary, Laird said he intended to visit Vietnam.

He was also asked if he would consider naming a Democrat as his deputy secretary.

"Well," he said, "I favored the appointment of a Democrat as Secretary of Defense, and so recommended to President-elect Nixon.

Asked why he made the case for a Democrat? "I don't mind telling you that I supported and recommended to the president-elect Senator Jackson of Washington for this job."

Laird did say he would gather a "new team" to run the Pentagon and favored creation of a high-level commission to study its organization and policy for six months to a year.

He said it was made necessary by "acts of subversion" which increased "until they reached the very doors of the national parliament."

Gama was referring to refusal by congress to permit the government to put on trial a member of congress the government accused of insulting the army, political observers said.

In New York the Inter-American Press Association protested to Costa e Silva the censorship which it said "infringes on freedom of the press."

Police arrested Helio Fernandes, director of the newspaper Tribuna de Imprensa, and Osvaldo Peralva, superintendent of the newspaper Correio da Manhã. Both newspapers had criticized the government.

Kubitschek had his political rights lifted for several years in one previous case. He was president from 1956-60 and his

Czechs Wait For Leaders

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovaks waited uneasily today to find out who will lead them and what concessions their Communist party has made to the Soviet Union.

At the end of a two-day meeting, the party's central committee said it would announce its decisions Monday on the make-up of the new federal government and economic plans for the new year.

An announcement from the official CTK news agency said the 191-member committee had been "informed of discussions" between Soviet and Czechoslovak leaders at a secret meeting in Kiev last weekend. Details of this meeting also may be included in the Monday announcement.

There was nothing in the CTK report to indicate the committee had made changes at the top in party leadership. Qualified sources said there were no such changes.

Instead, it was said discussions were confined to a new federal structure that takes effect next year. It calls for separate Czech and Slovak governments under a federal Cabinet in Prague.

The sources said Oldrich Cernik, the present premier, would head the government as federal premier. Other members were named to the Cabinet, to the Czech government in Prague and the Slovak government in Bratislava, they said.

Declarations from worker and student organizations were sent to the committee meeting, warning against ousting top liberal party leaders, including party secretary Alexander Dubcek.

Workers in Prague threatened to call a general strike if this happens. University students prepared for a possible strike on their own.

The secrecy of the Kiev and central committee meetings contrasted sharply with fuller reporting of top party functions in the days before the August invasion.

SPOT SAFETY CHECK—Kingston State Police in charge of Sergeant Richard Demsey are constantly on the alert conducting checks of motor vehicle operators traveling along highways in Ulster County. Three 2-hour checks were made within a week, one on Route 209 and two on Route 9W in the immediate vicinity of the state police barracks at Lake Katrine. Top photo shows four troopers making a routine check of cars and trucks and their operators on 9W in that area which motorists consider a dangerous spot because of the unlighted beginning of the center median. Car operators appear conscious of what is ahead for them when they see troopers and their cars on the highway and they are prepared to display their license to drive and the registration certificate. Those who fail to produce the required papers, are ordered to the side of the road where the courteous, well-trained trooper writes out a summons for the violation. The check by the state police also includes an inspection of tires, inspection sticker, lights and directional signals. They also note whether more than three adults are riding in the front seat. When there is any doubt as to the proper ownership, and when any indication appears that the vehicle might be stolen car, the serial number of the car is checked with number on the registration certificate. The corrective lenses restriction which is stamped on many operator's license, also is closely checked. The bottom photo shows Sgt. Demsey on the running board of a truck, examining the license and registration of the driver, to see that everything is in order. The check also takes in a close look at the log book, which all truck drivers are required to have in the vehicle. This book records the time of departure from a certain point and the number of hours the operator has been on the road. State Police throughout the Troop F area which includes Ulster County, frequently set up check points similar to those conducted in the Lake Katrine troop district. (Freeman Photos by Haines)

Doubts Nixon Move on Social Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic leader of the House doesn't think President-elect Nixon will try to substantially dismantle social programs begun by his Democratic predecessors—or that he could succeed if he did.

"It would be an impossible job," Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma said in an interview. "The penalty would be too great."

As majority leader, Albert ranks second in the House Democratic hierarchy to speaker John W. McCormack.

Albert said an immediate penalty would be refusal by Democrats, who still control Congress, to cooperate with the new administration.

Albert insisted the November election showed "the country is still basically Democratic." The House especially, is unchanged for practical purposes, with a loss of four Democratic seats offset by election of more liberal-leaning members among Republicans and Southern Democrats.

"If the new House were to vote on every major bill that was passed by last Congress I think the outcome would be the same," Albert remarked.

Although the responsibility for proposing major legislation from the executive branch will pass into Republican hands with Nixon's administration, Albert said congressional Democrats have the basis for their own legislative programs if it should be necessary to develop one.

"We have the platform adopted at the convention," he said. "We will have President Johnson's final state of the union message and we have the continuing information and work of the various congressional committees."

Albert says he knows of no plans to set up a separate Democratic organization to formulate a legislative program.

An attempt along these lines was made the last time Republicans controlled the White House and executive departments while Democrats controlled Congress. This was during the last six years of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration.

The committee set up then, including Congressional leaders, former officials and other major party figures, never functioned very effectively, largely because of the opposition of the late speaker Sam Rayburn and other congressional leaders.

But Albert said it is conceivable that, if the coming session of Congress nears its end without dealing with matters Democrats consider important, the Democrats in Congress might announce a program of legislative aims.

Despite Another Session

Early Release of Pueblo Crew Is Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official hopes have all but vanished for release any time soon of the imprisoned USS Pueblo crewmen although American and North Korean negotiators are about to meet again at Panmunjom.

The session will be the 26th since the intelligence ship and its 83-man crew were seized off North Korea last Jan. 23.

Although exact timing for the meeting could not be learned, it will come as some authorities in Washington are privately predicting there is no better than a 10 per cent chance that the 82 surviving crewmen can regain their freedom before the first anniversary of their capture.

By that time the challenge of the Pueblo will be a priority question for the Nixon administration.

Red China has said it would be willing to meet with the U.S. ambassador to Poland at Warsaw Feb. 20, a month after Nixon takes office.

But there is only an outside chance that North Korea, which is fiercely independent of both Moscow and Peking, would make a gesture toward the new American leadership.

North Korea continues to demand that the United States admit it was guilty of intruding into North Korean waters, apologize for the dead and promise that the action never be repeated.

The United States has insisted that the Pueblo was in international waters when a North Korean submarine approached the Pueblo some 15 miles off the port of Wonsan and signaled "heave to or I will open fire."

The Pueblo replied by flag signal that it was in international waters.

The ship was boarded by North Koreans and towed into Wonsan port after a brief action in which three Americans were wounded.

Unlike North Vietnam, the North Koreans have rigidly refused to permit the delivery of any Christmas messages and packages to the Pueblo.

Students, lawyers and journalists, who staged most of the past demonstrations, were joined Friday by labor union members in major East Pakistan towns.

Strikers marched with placards demanding political reforms, freedom of the press and the release of political detainees.

Protest marches also were reported in nine cities in West Pakistan Friday.

Police Quell Pakistan Mobs As Strike Paralyzes Sector

By MYRON BELKIND
Associated Press Writer
DACC, Pakistan (AP) — Police fired twice into rioting mobs Friday and arrested nearly 400 persons in East Pakistan where a one-day strike virtually paralyzed the region.

Officials said at least 12 factory workers were wounded, four critically, in the Indian Ocean port city of Chittagong.

Police also fired tear gas and made bamboo cane charges in Chittagong to disperse crowds that attacked cars and smashed shop windows.

In Dacca, the provincial capital, where President Mohammad Ayub Khan was completing a nine-day visit, troops were called in to patrol the streets after crowds burned or damaged seven cars, five buses and several police jeeps.

The police sprayed colored water on one crowd that included former Pakistan air force commander-in-chief Air Marshal Asghar Khan, now one of Ayub's political foes. Khan's secretary was among those arrested for defying a ban on public assembly.

The strike, billed as an "anti-repression day," was called by seven opposition parties to protest Ayub's policies, capping month-long antigovernment agitation.

Kids Say the Darndest Things to Santa

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

She was blond, blue-eyed, very beautiful, built exactly the way a girl should be, dressed in a costume that did a lot for her, and was curled up smack in the lap of a rather benevolent looking gentleman with a bushy beard. To the casual observer, it was obvious that she was totally smitten with the beard.

"What's that white stuff?" she asked with a puzzled frown. "You look awfully hard to kiss."

If he answered, we couldn't hear him and, shortly thereafter, he eased her gingerly off his knee; leaned his shaggy white-bearded head down to listen to the lamentations of a little boy about seven with bright red hair and a bridge of freckles across his tiny nose.

"My canary died last month," the redhead announced.

"Oh, that's too bad," said the portly old gentleman. "Would you like another one for Christmas?"

"No," said the little boy, "but I'd like some new vocal chords for my GI Joe doll. He lost the ones you gave him last year."

We were eavesdropping on the youngsters who were visiting the Santa Claus in a Kingston shopping center store and, after listening to only a few, we were already convinced that kids say the darndest things when they're telling Santa how it is. The men who act as toy order-takers for good St. Nick have to have something more going for them than the beards and candy-stick red suits to come up convincing in their roles. A really good stand-in Santa has to be part actor, part philosopher, and part grandpa. And it helps to have a working knowledge of what's happening on TV these days.

"I want Gentle Ben for Christmas," announced one sophisticated boy who looked about six.

"I'd like for you to put Tarzan back on television Friday nights," said another youngster, "and to bring me a tape recorder so I can take down the way he yells."

Bathroom Bound

"Goodbye, Santa," waved a pretty pig-tailed brunette. "I have to find my mommy and go to the bathroom, but don't forget to bring me a doll that crawls and cries. I saw one on TV and it's run by batteries."

One sad-eyed little first grader who was missing his two front teeth showed definite possibilities of someday becoming either a very good con man or an excellent stand-up comic. With a straight face he recited almost tearfully that he'd stayed the "same sweet boy" he always was for the past year and he just knew Santa knew it, too, and would reward him with a chemistry set, skis and poles, a phonograph, transistor radio, a whole set of Matt Mason space toys, a carrying case full of racing cars and trucks, and all the records of the Monkees.

Santa, who seemed to be mentally adding up all the price tags and arriving at a figure somewhere in the vicinity of $3,000, sent him on his way with the admonishment that he would bring them only if "it all fits in my sack."

We decided to move our base of operations to other stores and the Santa booth at 1818 Wall Street by the County Courthouse. And, if our research proved anything, it showed that most of the children who visit the Santas "real" Santa, and believe it so strongly it shows in almost every word they say. They also believe in asking plenty of questions during their encounters with the man with the beard and not always are the Santas of 1968 quick-witted enough to come up with an answer. Only a few resour-cefulness enough for a reasonable reply.

Where's your reindeer?" demanded a tyke with a puckered-up mouth.

"Why, up at the North Pole, waiting for our trip on Christmas Eve," shot back one jolly gent.

Are You For Real?

"Are you the REAL Santa?" is a constantly recurring question. Most Santas we observed simply said, "Of course." A few tried to change the subject. Not many showed any finesse in fielding this particular query. One who did, however, went into such a lengthy description of the climate at the North Pole, the industrious enthusiasm of his helpers, and the cooking and sewing abilities of Mrs. Claus that his inquisitor insisted on going back with him to meet the reindeer and the rest of the gang.

Our tour of local Santa stations also made it quite clear that if a few children are fearful and afraid in the great man's presence, most want to touch him at all costs, even though it may mean being tickled on the nose by his beard—an occurrence that frequently happens and is accompanied by prolonged giggling or immediate withdrawal. Occasionally, we saw a youngster reach up and tug at the beard. For the most part, though, the kids seemed content to place a hand on the furry cuff of the great gift-giver's sleeve, or to finger the buttons on his tunic.

In one store we came upon a Santa who had been too harried or too sloppy to concentrate on details. Resplendent in full costume, his feet protruded from his red trousers in a pair of brown loafers.

"Hey, you forgot your driving boots!" yelled one startled little boy.

But if some kids are almost too vociferous (like the little lad who said he didn't want anything for himself for Christmas but, "Please, would you bring my mommy a year's supply of toilet paper 'cause she's always running out of it and daddy's always mad"), a few are so overcome by excitement they can't say a word, even though urged and coached from the sidelines by parents.

One sign of the times that struck us as curious was the fact that we heard only one youngster ask for a live pet during our jaunt as a holiday peeping Tom.

"Yah," he said almost defensively, "I want a puppy that growls good."

Either 99 per cent of the kidshim in Ulster County already have been probably grateful from the pets or the advertising men's tips of his black boots to the along Madison Avenue and the pom-pom on his red stocking TV networks have relegated cap for even a part-time job in cats and dogs and goldfish to that Depression year, talked us some Siberian section of the out of it by convincing us that three-to-eight year-old mind the poor pony would fall into For the most part, they all tell melancholy in a third floor Santa to bring them toys walk-up apartment after knowing they've seen on TV—dolls that ing the luxury of a pastured splash in the bathtub, that eat farm.

We noted with a touch of sadness that in today's affluent society, even the local Santa who drew a request for Gentle Ben did not have the foresight to point out that Ben was either in hibernation for the winter, or would be heart-broken if forced to leave his little TV buddy and legitimate owner, Clint Howard.

We saw one horrified mother vigorously shaking her head in the background when her tiny daughter urged Santa to bring her a Suzy Homemaker cooking set and stove. We could guess why. Having gone through the Suzy stage with two of our own, we knew the havoc, chaos and mess these housewifely toys can create.

But this particular Santa was either too dense to recognize a mother's silent plea or too tired to care. He might have advised the tot she was too young to be saddled with the hard responsibility of caring for the toys. (Continued on Page 18)

Evening of Mimicry With Tony

Tony Montanaro, an artist with a unique gift for mimicry and a piercing insight into the foibles and follies of man, will give a lecture-demonstration on the art of mime, Sunday evening, Dec. 15, at 8:30, at Deanie's Restaurant, upstairs, Woodstock, presented by Performing Arts of Woodstock.

Montanaro has developed a new dimension in dramatic art. It is not the stylized pantomime of Marcel Marceau, with whom he studied, nor the response to music of modern dance, but a totally new means of communication. It emphasizes naturalness, simplicity, and precision. A frequent TV performer, he has recently appeared at the Creative Arts Festival, at Ann Arbor, Mich., Birmingham Arts Festival, New England Theatre Conference, Boston, Mass., Louisiana State University, Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, Rutgers University, N. J., and The White House, Washington, D. C.

This will be the first time in the history of the Vassar College Choir that Handel's Messiah will be performed. ## Italian Artists and Performers As Creators Are Vassar Topics

Vassar College students and other area residents were treated to two interesting lectures on the Poughkeepsie campus this week.

"Italian Draughtsmen of the 17th Century" was the topic of a talk by Jacob Bean, Curator of Drawings, Metropolitan Museum of Art. In a lecture sponsored by the Vassar Art Department and open to the public, Bean spoke in Taylor Hall about the flourishing art world of an earlier Italy.

A former special assistant in the Cabinet des Dessins, Louvre, Paris, the guest speaker has organized many art exhibitions in Manhattan which have emphasized art of the 17th Century Italy and of the Italian Renaissance.

Bean is also the author of the catalogue of Italian Drawings in the Bonnat Collection, Paris, and of "100 European Drawings in the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

Earlier, Steven Cahn, of the Department of Philosophy at New York University, appeared on the Vassar campus. A former assistant professor of philosophy at Vassar, he spoke on "The Performer as Creator: An Analysis of the Role of the Performer in Music." Sponsored by Philosopher's Holiday for students and public, he lectured in Josselyn Hall, utilized musical illustrations and philosophical arguments to defend Collingswood's view that "every performer is co-author of the work he performs." He also quoted Aristotle's view that "it is impossible, or at any rate very difficult, to produce good judges of musical performance from among those who have never themselves performed."

bilities of cooking and cleaning up after herself, but he seemed to agree with her that chocolate cake mix all over the living room rug and vanilla icing on the couch was just the ticket for Christmas '68.

Mom's Martinis

Still, it's nice to know that not all those little people under three feet tall are concerned with their own desires in this alienated age. Bouncing onto Santa's lap, one little boy urged him to "bring mommy a bottle of Scotch because daddy says she drinks too many martinis," and to bring daddy a pen "that never runs out of ink" so he can pay mommy's bills.

Another tyke who looked to be about three argued adamantly for a motorcycle.

"But you're so very small," said Santa. "Your legs aren't long enough yet for a cycle, and you're not old enough to get a license to ride it."

"Yes, I know all that," the boy agreed.

"How about a nice tricycle or rocking horse instead?" suggested Santa.

"No," said the boy.

"But you told me you knew you couldn't really ride a motorcycle," Santa persisted.

"That doesn't matter," said the boy. "Gretchen can and Gretchen's my new step-mother and she'll let me sit on the back and ride while she drives."

Mulling over our experiences on our trek, we came up with the consensus that most kids are great. They're as friendly and bright and nice as kids ought to be. But some of our local St. Nicks definitely need more work on their BSC (Bachelor of Santa Claus) degrees.

Two things strike us as being needed in the Santa career syndrome today. A little more old-fashioned philosophy from substitute St. Nicks would help. And some of those costumes are getting a bit shabby and some of the beards a trifle scraggly.

Considering what mom spends in local stores these days, the mark-up on toys should at least be compensated for in Santa attire that looks like the real McCoy, not like something that's been handed down in mothballs from the dime store's post Halloween sale.

Choir on a Yule Tour

WAPPINGERS FALLS—Sixty-five male voices strong, the Hamilton College Choir from Hamilton College in Clinton, will present a concert Dec. 20, at 8:30 p.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Poughkeepsie. This performance, which is part of the choir's annual Christmas tour, is being sponsored by Area Alumni.

Directed by Professor James Frankhauser, the choir sings music from many periods, but specializes in the great choral literature of the Renaissance. Its repertoire includes works by Palestrina, Hassler, Vittoria, Tallis, Purcell and Schutz.

The Hamilton College Brass Choir, directed by Stephen Bonta, will also perform. These 12 instrumentalists play with a high degree of excellence works by such composers as Gabrieli, Obrecht, Prokofiev and Hindemith.

In its 93 year history, the Hamilton Choir has continually presented clean, precise, yet moving interpretations of both secular and sacred music. At least twice each year, the choir presents a major joint concert with glee clubs from schools such as Vassar, Sarah Lawrence, Smith, Wells and Oneonta.

This past summer the choir completed its first tour of Europe. The Valencia Actualid said in a review of one concert that the "balanced cohesion of the group, its vocal quality and its admirable style places this artistic entity on a high level."

College Concerts For DCC's Chorus

Presentation of holiday music by the music department at Dutchess Community College this year includes one concert this week at Hudson River State Hospital and another on December 119 at DCC's Poughkeepsie campus.

The chorus, conducted by Mrs. Helen Baldwin, associate professor of music, offered patients at Hudson River a presentation of Christmas music from many lands and many ages.

Soloists were Doris Johnson, Copake; Matthew Migliaccio, Livingston; Frances DeForest, LaGrangeville; Winona Snyder and Michael Brown, both of Hyde Park; as well as Michael Fine and William Paroli, both of Poughkeepsie.

Piano accompanist was Elaine Gellen, Hopewell Junction.

For the concert on the college campus next week, the chorus and soloists will be joined by the brass choir, conducted by Roger Thorpe, assistant professor of music.

Christmas Show At WAA Gallery

Popular prices will prevail throughout the run of the annual Christmas Show at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery. The holiday exhibit goes on view today and will run through Dec. 29 at the gallery on Woodstock's Tinker Street.

Art lovers will have fun just looking and Christmas shoppers who would like to buy a painting by a well-known artist for that special person on their Yule list will find this show offers just such a golden opportunity. Most of Woodstock's finest artists are exhibiting and there will be a maximum price of $150 on all works shown. Prices also range much lower on some works.

An opening party will be held this afternoon from 4 to 6 and all are invited to attend, see the show and meet some of the artists. Those who miss the party can still shop or browse daily until the show closes.

Flim-Flam Series

Yet another motion picture is being tapped as the source of a possible video series. It is "The Flim-Flam Man," a 20th Century-Fox release of last year. The studio has signed Forrest Tucker to star in the pilot of the series, which NBC has under option.

"ARTIST" CHARLES DENNER poses model Jeanne Moreau in a scene from "The Bride Wore Black," a drama of murder and vengeance. Directed by France's Francois Truffaut, one of the founders of "The New Wave," it's currently showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema.

BRIGITTE BARDOT finds herself in the clutches of a band of fanatic Apaches in the made-in-Spain Western, "Shalako." Made-in-Spain or not, it's set in the American southwest of the 1880's and it's now on screen at Walter Reade's Mayfair Theatre through Tuesday.

MOVIES

Shalako

Take Brigitte Bardot, who gained fame by wearing a towel, mini-skirts and hip-hugging trousers, and dress her in period attire of the 1880's. Put her into the American southwest where Apaches roam and have her meet up with Sean Connery, who has shed his stylish James Bond suits for an unshaven, unshorn and shaggy appearance.

Given this premise, most people would assume it could only mean a run of the mill movie. But they'd be wrong. "Shalako" (which means Bringer of Rain) turns out to be a film worth seeing. The script is one of the most interesting in the western variety to come along in a long time; has to do with an aristocratic European hunting expedition trapped in Indian country.

And the precocious Bardot does well with her part. There has been no attempt to mold her into a pioneer lass. She can still look as sultry as she wants in the role of a Countess and her accent doesn't interfere one whit.

The film also boasts an excellent supporting cast. There's Honor Blackman (a James Bond veteran) and she's top-notch at trading salon witticisms. The talented Jack Hawkins does well in a performance for which his voice has been dubbed because of a throat-cancer operation. Alexander Knox is along for the ride, and Woody Strode is barely recognizable under all that makeup as an Apache chief.

And then, of course, there's Connery, who may not look like Bond in this one, but still manages to save the good guys from the Indians and from Stephen Boyd (as the villainous safari guide) and corral Bardot for himself.

British nobility on safari in frontier America makes for an evening of entertaining film fare. You can even take the kids to the early show because this is one bang-bang western that has little violence. It's riding off into the sunset at Walter Reade's Mayfair Theatre currently.

Bride Wore Black

A woman says goodbye to a friend at a French railway station and boards the train like any normal passenger. But, once aboard, she sneaks out on the other side of the platform. It looks like a Hitchcock thriller on the way. Instead it's Francois Truffaut and, in this instance, it's better than Hitchcock.

In "The Bride Wore Black," now playing through Tuesday at Woodstock's Tinker Street Theatre, Truffaut takes U.S. mystery writer Cornell Woolrich's novel and turns it into a Gallic combination of Hitchcock-Truffaut-Kafka-Poe.

In flashbacks we see the groom and bride (Jeanne Moreau) joyously descend the church steps to pose for the photographer. A shot rings out, and the new husband falls to the ground. It's all the result of a dare. The groom has been done in by five drinking and hunting buddies who were playing around with a gun and got cute. But the bride is a vengeful widow and off she goes to track down the killers—one by one.

She's a Chiller

The role is perfect for the languid Moreau and the phrase she uses before each kill, as she identifies herself to her victims, chills a viewer's marrow before this movie has ended. Each time she enunciates, "I am Julie Kohler," someone topples off a terrace or dies of poison or in a manner even more macabre.

Fanatic though she may be, Moreau meeting out justice makes for an excellent film. She proves her stature as one of France's major actresses—and Truffaut shows himself to be a master of tension and suspense. This is a low-keyed, beautiful film, meticulously directed. All of the black bride's victims give subtle performances, but the best has to be credited to Michel Bouquet, who combines pathos and loathsomeness as a balding bachelor marked for the kill.

And give credit, too, to Charles Denner as a painter who puts the wrong weapon into model Moreau's hands—and to Claude Rich as a womanizer who shortly loses his smirk.

The background scenery is superb and even the minor actors (like one little boy who appears for only a minute to play at gamesmanship with Moreau) are given special treatment. But it's Moreau's movie all the way and she is as melancholy and as sophisticated a bereaved widow as ever the screen has seen. This is a masterpiece of suspense and we recommend it without reservations.

Angels From Hell and Mini-Skirt Mob

Geared for the teenage crowd, these two films are playing on a double bill at Walter Reade's Community Theatre tonight and tomorrow only. It's just as well the run is short because both are stereotypical motorcycle pictures.

Helmeted, bearded cyclists loom in the foreground throughout, zooming machines leap forward, and wheels careen on asphalt. "Mini-Skirt Mob" is perhaps the least obnoxious of the two movies. At least, there are occasional flickers of intentional humor, but one has to be up on the vernacular to catch them. As for "Angels From Hell," it's good for laughs, too, even though it wasn't intended to be funny. The violence is unintentionally ridiculous and it all ends as it began, in utter cinematic chaos, proving itself

TV's Highlights and Sidelights

The Wizard of Oz, the old Judy Garland film, will not be seen on NBC-TV during the Christmas holiday season for a very good reason. The network has been unable to sell it to a sponsor. After years on CBS-TV, NBC bought the film, generally seen around Christmas, and this year finds itself stuck. Tentatively, they plan to show it around March, if a sponsor loosens the purse strings. The total cost of sponsoring: $1,200,000.

Ken Curtis, who plays Festus on Gunsmoke, is still regarded as the "new" member of the series' cast. But he's now in this sixth season.

In answer to an inquiry, we checked with NBC-TV's Today show to ask why the program doesn't go back to the street. Remember when the show used to focus on the audience, which held up signs saying, 'Hello, Mom.' Today's producers are too leery that in this age of protest the cameras would be focusing on nuts of all types carrying signs that might include obscenities.

What a Change

Now that winter's here in earnest, it has occurred to us that one of the most noticeable changes in TV over the years has been the coming of age of the weathermen. Gone are the days of such silly antics as weather girls dressed in bikinis to denote sunny skies, or see-through raingear for leaky days. Stations and networks have gotten quite serious about this phase of their telecast day and the weather shows now have the look of a meteorology classroom. Some new weathermen are so in tune with the times, they use a computer with the ease of the old weatherman's magic marker. Incidentally, this year's forecast for Christmas Day in our area is for cloudy weather with snow and temperatures ranging from 28 to 32 degrees. So you can start getting in the mood right now for a white Christmas.

They tell us Elvis Presley's recent TV special was an effort to prove he's with the now people. From what we hear around town, nobody's skeptical about that any more.

Don't forget that wall the producer of A Family Affair is giving away. It will be seen on the Dec. 23 episode and if you want this psychedelic, hand-painted thing, write and tell why. The best letter—and the lucky winner—will be picked by Sebastian Cabot, Anissa Jones and Johnny Whitaker. Send your letter, which must be mailed before Jan. 10, to Family Affair Contest, CBS Studio Center, 4024 North Radford Avenue, North Hollywood, Calif.

THE PAST WEEK'S TV VIEWING mainly made for much food for thought in several but definitely un-Christmassy programs. Among them:

"Hear Us, O Lord," the PBL film on Channel 17 that studied a white Chicago suburb and its stunned and angry response to a federal school bussing order; was a close-up portrait of Northern segregationists in action. The show gave an inside view of a family that feels threatened by the proximity of blacks.

"The Drinking American"—a provocative and often comical program on the use and misuse of alcohol; proving that people drink to achieve courage, the illusion of sexual prowess, camaraderie, and an escape from insoluble problems. America is a drinking country, we found (although we already knew it), despite the fact that alcohol is the third largest health problem in this country. As usual, Madison Avenue got the blame.

"The Road to Gettysburg," one of the finest examinations of the horrors of the Civil War that any home screen viewer will ever see. A superb documentary, the program looked at the many facets of battle, the war and the times like a doctor performing an autopsy and making certain that every nook and cranny of the corpse is probed.

"60 Minutes," which focused on another chilling aspect in the lives of young male adults by graphically examining homosexual assaults in the nation's prisons; proved first offenders in prison are in far greater danger behind bars than they ever were while free on the streets.

The first program in "The Film Generation" series with its emphasis on "the reality movement." This view of independent filmmaking proved new and exciting, and the premiere program covered everything from folk-singer Bob Dylan and science-fiction to witty comments on our times and light projections and far-out sounds.

to be the lower depths stuff of which Grade D double bills are made.

This type of cycle gang movie is getting so bad that we sometimes think even their producers must be slightly fed up with the current onslaught of films about motorcycle hoodlum gangs. If they are, we'd like to suggest that it's time they shifted gears. We've had our fill this year of little towns being ripped apart by leather-jacketed animals, scenes of violence, misunderstood youth, and boys being boys.

In our hearts, however, we know it's too much to hope for. If those massed cycles don't come roaring again and again toward the box office as loud as ever, we'll be very much surprised. Somehow, they seem to keep attracting a sizeable audience, whether their riders go by the name of Hell's Angels, Devil's Angels, The Skulls, or something else. CLAUDE MONTEUX

Monteux to Conduct; Guitarist Will Solo

The versatile Luis Garcia for Guitar and Strings, and Renart will play a return performance at Orange County Community College on Sunday, Dec. 15, as guitar soloist with the Hudson Valley Chamber Players.

The OCCC Lyceum series program will take place at 8 p.m. in the college's Orange Hall auditorium, Middletown. The public is invited and tickets may be obtained at the door or by calling the office of the OCCC dean of students, (914) 343-1171.

Claude Monteux will conduct the Chamber Players in a program including Gabrieli, the Mendelssohn Octet for Strings, Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, a Haydn Divertimento Vivaldi's Guitar Concerto with Mr. Garcia-Renart as soloist.

The guitarist appeared at OCCC last April with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Little Symphony orchestra as soloist on the cello. Born in Barcelona, Spain, he started his musical career on guitar at the age of seven; later studied cello with Casals in Puerto Rico and France and with Rostrovich at the Moscow Conservatory under a special scholarship. After winning prizes in the Casals International Contests in Paris 1956, Mexico 1959 and Israel 1961, he has become a resident of the Hudson Valley region, as a member of the Bard College faculty.

'Christmas Concerto' Featured at New Paltz

The College-Community Orchestra of State University College, New Paltz, will present its fall concert under the direction of Dr. Harry Nammer, Monday, Dec. 16 at 8:30 p.m. in the McKenna Theater on the New Paltz campus.

There is no charge for admission to the performance which will include Corelli's "Christmas Concerto," Concerto Grosso Op. 6 No. 8.

Featured soloists for the evening will be concertmaster Linda Cumiskey of the New Paltz music faculty in Beethoven's Romance No. 2 for violin and orchestra, and William McCann, French horn soloist in the Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream," by Mendelssohn. Mr. McCann, assistant professor of music, directs the college's Symphonic Band.

The orchestra is composed of professional musicians and outstanding non-professionals from the Mid-Hudson region. About two-thirds of the 75-piece orchestra comes from off-campus and the others are mainly music faculty and music students at New Paltz.

In the Christmas Concerto, the concertino will feature Miss Cumiskey and James Maurer, violins, Harry Jensen, also of the New Paltz music faculty, cello, and Joyce Auchincloss, harpsichord.

Monday night's program will also include Wagner's March from "Tannhauser" and the Faithful Shepherd Suit by Handel. After intermission, the orchestra will continue with the Overture and Allegro from "La Sultane Suite" by Couperin, the Nocturne and Christmas Concerto, and Moussorgsky's Hopak from "The Fair at Sorochinsk."

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

"Tis the season to be jolly," and the Freeman crew took a slice of the action in the true "spirit (s)" of the season at a Christmas party Saturday at Sawyerkill.

John Davis has been holding out on us but he "opened up" when he spotted singer Chad Fuller at Sawyerkill. Seems John was adlibbing with the orchestra at Anton's — playing bass. The whole bit was so good it was taped. Anton's just "changed hands" but the new owner MUST be playing that tape. After all, one would expect to hear "heavenly" music at Harp's Inn.

Freeman sports columnist "Old Rip" and Mrs. "Old Rip" really flipped for the hors d'oeuvres. Must have been stuffed with fish and venison; that would account for Old Rip's tickling taste buds.

Transportation superintendent Frankie Bruno and wife Helen have friends galore and Frank's buddies REALLY give him service. Even waitress Peggy saw to it Frank had his very own Christmas candelabra.

Sawyerkill must have been expecting Bob Boerner; red plaid carpeting exactly matched Bob's bow tie and vest.

Seeing Irwin Thomas reminded us that daughter Cheryl had been home for Thanksgiving. Don't know if it was mother Norma's good cooking, Cheryl's summer in Hawaii, or college life at Fredonia, but something is agreeing with her; she positively glows. But then her father was glowing, too, in a nice sort of way, of course.

Bob Bain's better-half looked great in a black, mandarin-neck dress. Eileen just had her ears pierced and was telling everyone; after all it did take a certain amount of courage. Bob would have done the honors but she wasn't having any.

Ed Palladino was all a-dither; it isn't every day one's selected to represent his newspaper at Columbia U.

Hardly recognized Jimmy Lawrence. Usually in typical pressroom attire — dungarees and sweatshirt — he looked like an important newspaper executive leaning back in his chair smoking a big cigar. That lovely girl on his arm was Bonnie Lyons. Must say Jim has good taste.

Speaking of good taste, Ken Pillsworth holds high score in that department. His petite Janice is cute as a button and one can tell Kenny is delighted to be all sewed up.

Cocktail waitresses were especially Christmasy in red outfits with white fur trim and black boots. Those boots were made for walking 'cause they were really kept steppin'. Jessie Wolfersteig was all decked out in red and we had to look twice or we'd have ordered our cocktails from Jessie by mistake.

Evelyn Chilson, stunning in silver and black, was escorted by ITU president Art Sharrett. You MUST know Evelyn is mother-in-law of Seattle's Mike Ferraro.

Betty Radell, attractive in mink trimmed black brocade, deserves kudos for the evening. There were "regular" customers there, too. Herb Greenwalds, Charlie Forst, Bud Elmendorfs, Frank Kolts, Ray Myers, Judge Sterley. One expects owner to lay out the carpet for guests but accommodating Rim Matthews did one better; he rolled it UP so diners could cut a rug to catchy rhythm of Bill Williams' organ.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

ELEVEN MAIN is a handsome restaurant that takes its name from its address, 11 Main Street, Kingston. It serves its cuisine in la grande tradition—our idea of la grande tradition, not that admired by the French.

You won't find le canard bigarade flambe on the menu, but you will find an extensive list of specialties in the steak, chops, and sea food categories. The place believes specialties make its reputation and has lots of them.

A regal entree at a dinner for two might be Broiled Thick Sirloin Steak ($4 for one) . . . or try the Extra Thick Sirloin Steak ($11 for two). This particular meal might begin with excellently prepared oysters on the half shell in season, or a half broiled grapefruit with crushed strawberries. From the assortment of desserts, one might select the creamy rice pudding or ice cream with Creme de Menthe or Cocao.

We state without the least reserve that Eleven Main is a superior place in which to eat. In many ways it has become an institution in the few short years it's been on the local scene. Only a stone's throw from the Ulster County Office Building, it's a favorite spot of the area's legal eagles and of politicians with business in the uptown complex.

Its charcoal broiler works overtime at the luncheon hour. Open daily except Sunday from noon until 2 a.m., the sandwich menu is almost overwhelming—and any one listed is lunch enough for anyone. Several are served with French fried potatoes and cole slaw, such as the sirloin steak sandwich, the steak-burger deluxe, the cheese-burger deluxe, and the tenderloin steak sandwich.

But if lunch is a pleasant affair in the quietly intimate setting of Eleven Main, one must recognize, too, that this is a place for any hour. Dinner here can be as elegant as anywhere, especially if one orders up the broiled garlic sirloin steak, the broiled filet mignon, the mixed grill (a delicious meal of lamb chop, filet mignon and grilled tomato), or the Surf and Turf Platter, featuring lobster tail and filet mignon.

This uptown spot also lends itself to an intimate late supper, and when we're eating late we favor the broiled small sirloin steak or one of the sea food specialties. Dishes ranging from broiled lobster dainties, plain or scamp, with drawn butter, to fried fish du jour with tartar sauce are available. Eleven Main's combination sea food platter (half a lobster tail, fried shrimp, scallops and fish) is an appetizing platterful.

There's a handsome little bar and quietly unobtrusive tables, banquettes and occasional gleams of copper. Needless to say, the bar is a popular place for an evening drink and, if you're having more than one, you can't go wrong if you decide to have a snack specialty along with your martini, Manhattan, or Scotch and water. It's wonderful before dinner, for dinner, or after dinner. And why wouldn't it be when it's a sizzling platter of charcoal broiled tidbits on toast.

Eleven Main has become a regular stopping place for a great many people and, congenial caravansary that it is, we guarantee that it'll appeal to you, too, if you're trying it for the first time.

Winter Concert Sunday

A festive winter concert, combining the talents of both the Ulster County Community College Chorus and Band, promises exceptional holiday entertainment for local residents.

This year marks the Sixth Annual Winter Concert of UCCC and the public is invited to the program, set for Sunday, Dec. 15 at 3:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Kingston's J. Watson Bailey School. There is no admission charge.

One highlight of the program will be the Chorus singing "Why Do Our Joys Depart," put to music in 1953 by Robert Stein, UCCC's coordinator of music, from a text written exactly 100 years previously by Walter Landor.

Among solosist for the concert will be Patricia Somers, UCCC student from Kerhonkson, who will play a flute sonata by Vivaldi with harpischord accompaniment by coordinator Stein.

The Chorus, composed of 40 students at the college, will sing seven numbers including Six Brahms Folk Songs, Song of the Lark, Up, Up and Away, Hunting Song, Coventry Carol, Carol of the Bells, and Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah.

The Band, made up of 15 students, will play such popular tunes as Step to the Rear, Impossible Dream, Witchcraft, Thoroughly Modern Millie, This Is My Song, Mame, Hey, Look Me Over, Call Me, Meditation, A Man and a Woman, and Blue-Sette.

The Chorus and Band will combine to offer Red Sails in the Sunset, Memories of You, and Indiana.

The Sunday afternoon concert will be directed by Mr. Stein, who joined the local faculty this fall and studied with several outstanding musicians, in addition to his formal education. His professional music career has included performing on piano and trombone with commercial and jazz groups, playing the harpischord, conducting, arranging, accompanying and private teaching.

A native of White Sulphur Springs, N.Y., Robert Stein earned his BA and MS degrees from Queens College and the State University College at New Paltz respectively.

TV Cartoons Axed

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Storybook Squares," a Merrill Heatter-Robert Quigley game program for children patterned after their daily "Hollywood Squares" on NBC, will become a Saturday fixture on the network Jan. 4. Joining it, as NBC cuts down on its action-adventure cartoon type of shows, will be "Untamed World," dealing with nature studies. The "Birdman" and "Super President" cartoons get the axe.
